HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.

A Bitters without Alcohol or Spirits of any kind,

Is different from all others. It is composed of the pure Juices, or Vital Principle of Roots, Herbs and Barks, (or as medicinally termed Extracts,) the worthless or inert portions of the ingredients not being used. Therefore, in one Bottle of these Bitters there is contained as much medicinal virtue as will be found in several gallons of ordinary mixtures. The Roots, &c., used in this Bitters, are grown in Germany, their vital principles extracted in that country by a scientific Chemist, and forwarded to the manufactory in this city, where they are compounded and bottled. Containing no spirituous ingredients, this Bitters is free from the objections urged against all others; no desire for stimulents can be induced from their use, they cannot make drunkards, and cannot under any circumstances, have any but a beneficial effect.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,

Was compounded for those not inclined to extreme bitters, and is intended for use in cases when some alcoholic stimulent is required in connection with the Tonic properties of the Bitters. Each bottle of the Tonic contains one bottle of the Bitters, combined with pure SANTA CRUZ RUM, and flavored in such a manner that the extreme bitterness of the Bitters is overcome, forming a preparation highly agreeable and pleasant to the palate and containing the medicinal virtue of the Bitters. The price of the Tonic is $1.50 per Bottle, which many persons think too high. They must take into consideration that the stimulent used is guaranteed to be of a pure quality. A poor article could be furnished at a cheaper price, but is it not better to pay a little more and have a good article? A medicinal preparation should contain none but the best ingredients; and they who expect to obtain a cheap compound, and be benefitted by it will most certainly be cheated.

SPEAK FOR THESE REMEDIES.

Who would ask for more Dignified or Stronger Testimony?

Hon. GEORGE W. WOODWARD, formerly Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, at present Member of Congress from Pennsylvania, writes:

PHILADELPHIA, March 16, 1867.

I find "Hoofland's German Bitters" is a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility and want of nervous action in the system. Yours truly,

GEORGE W. WOODWARD.

Hon. JAMES THOMPSON, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28, 1867.

I consider Hoofland's German Bitters" a valuable medicine in case of attacks of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it. Yours with respect,

JAMES THOMPSON.

Hon. GEORGE SHARSWOOD, Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania:

PHILADELPHIA, June 1. 1868.

GEORGE SHARSWOOD.

Hon. Wm. F. Rogers, Mayor of the City of Buffalo, New-York:

Mayor's Office, Buffalo, June 22, 1869.

I have used "Hoofland's German Bitters and Tonic" in my family during the past year, and can recommend them as an excellent tonic, imparting tone and vigor to the system. Their use has been productive of decidedly beneficial effects.

WM. F. ROGERS.

Hon. Jas. M. Wood, Ex-Mayor of Williamsport, Pennsylvania:

I take great pleasure in recommending "Hoofland's German Tonic" to any one who may be afflicted with Dyspepsia. I had the Dyspepsia so badly it was impossible to keep any food on my stomach, and I became so weak as not to be able to walk half a mile. Two bottles of Tonic effected a perfect cure.

Or Substitute for Mercury Pills.

TWO PILLS A DOSE.

The Most Powerful, yet Innocent, Vegetable Cathartic known.

It is not necessary to take a handful of these pills to produce the desired effect; two of them act quickly and powerfully, cleansing the Liver, Stomach and Bowels of all impurities. The principal ingredient is Podophyllin, or the Alcoholic Extract of Mandrake, which is by many times more powerful, acting and searching than the Mandrake itself. Its peculiar action is upon the Liver, cleansing it speedily from all obstructions, with all the power of Mercury, yet free from the injurious results attached to the use of that mineral.

For all diseases, in which the use of a cathartic is indicated, these pills will give entire satisfaction in every case. They NEVER FAIL.

In cases of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia and extreme costiveness, Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters or Tonic should be used in connection with the Pills. The tonic effect of the Bitters or Tonic builds up the system. The Bitters or Tonic purifies the Blood, strengthens the Nerves, REGULATES the Liver, and gives strength, energy and vigor.

Keep your Bowels active with the Pills, and tone up the system with Bitters or Tonic, and no disease can retain its hold, or ever assail you.

Recollect that it is DR. HOOFLAND'S GERMAN REMEDIES that are so universally used and highly recommended; and do not allow the Druggist to induce you to take anything else that he may say is just as good, because he makes a larger profit on it. These Remedies will be sent by Express to any locality, upon application to the PRINCIPAL OFFICE, at the GERMAN MEDICINE STORE, 631 Arch St., Philadelphia

SELECT POETRY.

THE OLD PENNSYLVANIA FARMER.

BY BAYARD TAYLOR.

I don't half live, penned up in doors; a stove's not like the sun,
When I can't see how things go on, I fear they're badly done;
I might have farmed till now, I think—one's family is so queer—
As if a man can't oversee who's in his eightieth year.

Father, I mind, was eighty-five before he gave up his,
But he wasn't dim of sight, and crippled with the rheumatiz;
I followed in his old, steady way, so he was satisfied,
But Reuben likes new-fangled things and ways I can't abide.

I'm glad I built this southern porch; my chair seems easier here;
I haven't seen as fine a spring this six-and-twenty year!
And how the time goes round so quick—a week, I would have sworn,
Since they were husking on the hill, and now they're hoeing corn.

When I was young, time had, like me, a lazy ox's pace,
But now it's like a blooded horse, that means to win the race;
And yet I can't fill out my days, I tire myself with naught;
I'd rather use my legs and hands, than plague my head with thought.

If father lived, I'd like to know what he would say to these
New notions of the young men, who farm with chemistries!
There's different stock and other grass, there's patent plow and cart—
Five hundred dollars for a bull!—it would have broke his heart.

They think I have an easy time, no need to worry now,
Sit in the porch all day and watch them mow, and sow, and plow;
Sleep in the Summer in the shade, in Winter in the sun,
I'd rather do the thing myself, and know just how it's done.

Well—I suppose I'm old, and yet 'tis not so long ago
When Reuben spread the swath to dry, and Jesse learned to mow,
And William raked, and Israel hoed, and Joseph pitched with me;
But such a man as I was then, my boys, will never be!

I don't mind William's hankering for lectures and for books;
He never had a farming knack—you'd see it in his looks;
But handsome is that handsome does, and he is well to do;
'Twould ease my mind if I could say the same of Jessie too!

There's one black sheep in every flock, so there must be in mine,
But I was wrong the second time his bond to underaign;
It's less than what his share will be—but there's the interest!
In two years more I might have had two thousand to invest.

There's no use thinking of it now, and yet it makes me sore;
The way I've saved and saved, I ought to count a little more.
I never lost a foot of land, and that's a comfort sure,
And if they do not call me rich they cannot call me poor.

Well, well, ten thousands times I've thought the things I'm thinking now;
I've thought them in the harvest field, and in the clover mow;
And sometimes I get tired of them, and wished I'd something new—
But this is all I've seen and known, so what's a man to do?

'Tis like my time is nearly out, of that I'm not afraid—
I've never cheated any man, and all my debts are paid.
They call it rest that we shall have, but work would do no harm;
There can't be rivers there and fields, without some kind of farm!

SELECT MISCELLANY.

SUMMERFIELD'S SECRET.

"A Million of Dollars or I'll Set the Pacific Ocean in Flames"—Fate of a Man Who Burnt Up a Mountain Lake in Fifteen Minutes—A Remarkable Story.

In the Sacramento Daily Union of a recent date appears the extraordinary statement of one Leonidas Parker, written before his death, and giving what purports to be a true account of his connection with the murder of Gregory Summerfield. The latter individual has been known for many years as "The Man with the Secret," and he met with a horrible death at the age of seventy years, by being pushed from the platform of a train upon the Union Pacific Railroad, near the north fork of the American river, at a place called Cape Horn. The unfortunate wretch was hurled downward a distance of over one thousand feet upon the bristling rocks at the foot of the declivity. Parker, who was upon the platform at the time of the catastrophe, was twice arrested and tried for the alleged murder, but was on each occasion mysteriously acquitted, once by a justice and the second time by a grand jury.

Parker was himself a distinguised lawyer of Sacramento, and was widely respected. He always remained silent concerning the circumstances of the imputed crime, but shortly before his death he placed in the hands of a friend a document, the gist of which we give below, the entire story taking up nearly a page of the Union.

Referring to George Summerfield, the murdered man, Mr. Parker speaks of him as having been one of the deepest chemical students of the age, a natural mathematician, a profound astronomer, and a man of excellent general literary attainments. Parker had known Summerfield for over twenty years, their acquaintance having been formed in Texas during the days of the republic. Continuing his account Parker says:

One day toward the close of last September an old man rapped at my office door, and on invitation came in, and advancing called me by name. Perceiving that I at first did not recognize him, he introduced himself as George Summerfield. After inviting him to a seat I scrutinized his features more closely and quickly identified him as the same person whom I had met twenty-two years before. He was greatly altered in appearance, but there was the old charm of intellectual superiority in conversation, and I welcomed him to California as an important addition to her mental worth.

"It was not many minutes before he requested a private interview. He followed me back into my back office, carefully closed the door after him and locked it. We had scarcely seated ourselves before he inquired of me 'if I had noticed any recent articles in the newspapers respecting the discovery of the art of decomposing water so as to fit it for use as a fuel for ordinary purposes?'

"I replied that I had observed nothing new on the subject since the experiment of Agassiz and Prof. Henry, and added that, in my opinion, the expensive mode of reduction would always prevent its use."

"In a few words he then informed me that he had made the discovery, that the art was extremely simple, and the expense attending the decomposition so slight as to be insignificant.

"Presuming that the object of his visit to me was to procure the necessary forms to get out a patent for the right, I congratulated him upon his good fortune and was about to branch forth with a description of some of the great benefits that must ensue to the community, when he suddenly and somewhat uncivilly requested me to 'be silent,' and listen to what he had to say.

"He began with some general remarks about the inequality of fortune amongst mankind, and instanced himself as a striking example of the fate of those men who, according to all the rules of right, ought to be near the top, instead of at the foot of the ladder of fortune. 'But,' said he springing to his feet with impulsive energy; 'I have now the means at my command of rising superior to fate, or of inflicting incalculable ills upon the whole human race.'

"Looking at him more closely, I thought I could detect in his eye the gleam of madness; but I remained silent and awaited further developments. But my scrutiny, stolen as it was, had been detected, and he replied at once to the expression of my face; 'No, sir, I am neither drunk nor a maniac; I am in deep earnest in all that I say; and I am fully prepared, by actual experiment, to demonstrate beyond all doubt the truth of all I claim.'

"For the first time I noticed that he carried a small portmanteau in his hand; this he placed upon the table, unlocked it, and took out two or three small volumes, a pamphlet or two, and a small, square, widemouthed phial, hermetically sealed.

"I watched him with profound curiosity, and took note of his slightest movements. Having arranged his books to suit him, and placed the phial in a conspicuous position, he drew up his chair closely to my own and uttered, in a half hissing tone:

"'I demand one million dollars for the contents of that bottle, and you must raise it for me in the city of San Francisco within one month, or scenes too terrible even for the imagination to conceive, will surely be witnessed by every living human being on the face of the globe.'

"The tone, the manner, and the absurd extravagance of the demand, excited a faint smile upon my lips, which he observed, but disdained to notice.

"My mind was fully made up that I had a maniac to deal with, and I prepared to act accordingly. But I ascertained at once that my inmost thoughts were read by the remarkable man before me, and seemed to be anticipated by him in advance of their expression.

"'Perhaps,' said I, 'Mr. Summerfield you would oblige me by informing me fully of the grounds of your claim, and the nature of your discovery.'

"'That is the object of my visit,' he replied. 'I claim to have discovered the key which unlocks the constituent gases of water, and frees each from the embrace of the other, at a single touch.'

"'You mean to assert,' I rejoined, 'that you can make water burn itself up.'

"'Nothing more or less,' he responded, 'except this—to insist upon the consequences of the secret, if my demand be not at once complied with.'

"'Now suppose I fling the contents of this small phial into the Pacific Ocean, what would be the result? Dare you contemplate it for an instant? I do not assert that the entire surface of the sea would instantaneously bubble up into insufferable flames; no, but from the nucleus of a circle, of which this phial would be the centre, luri radii of flames would gradually shoot outward, until the blazing circumference would roll in vast billows of fire upon the uttermost shores. Not all the dropping clouds of the deluge could extinguish it; not all the tears of saints and angels could for an instant check its progress. Onward and onward it would sweep, with the steady gait of destiny, until the very elements would melt with fervent heat, the atmosphere glare with the ominous conflagration, and all living creatures—in land, and sea, and air—perish in one universal catastrophe.'

"Then suddenly starting to his feet, he drew himself to his full height, and murmered solemnly, 'I feel like a God! and recognize my fellow-men as pigmies that I spurn beneath my feet.'

At this Parker states that he attempted to reason with Summerfield on the absurdity of oelieving that he held in his hands power so mighty, at which the latter retorted with quotations from the scriptures, Humboldt's Cosmos, and the works of famous astronomical writers, proving that it was not only possible for entire planets to be destroyed by fire, but that such terrible events had actually occurred. This answer concluded, he handed Parker a small phial, requesting him to open it and smell of its contents, the result being that a strong odor of potassium was observed. At this Summerfield continued, "Of course," said he "you are familiar with the chief characteristic of that substance. It ignites instantly when brought into contact with water. Within that little globule of potassium I have imbedded a pill of my own composition and discovery. The moment it is liberated from the potassium it commences the work of decomposing the fluid on which it floats. The potassium at once ignites the liberated oxygen, and the conflagration of this mighty globe is begun."

"'Yes,' said I, 'begun, if you please, but your little pill soon evaporates or sinks, or melts in the surrounding seas, and your conflagration ends just where it begun."

"'But,' sneered he, the elementary substances in that small phial recreate themselves; they are self-generating, and when once fairly under way, must necessarily sweep onward, until the waters in all the seas are exhausted.'

"Rising from my seat, I went to the wash stand in the the corner of the apartment, and, drawing a bowlfull of Spring Valley water, I turned to Summerfield and remarked, 'Words and empty theories, are idle—but facts are things,'"

"I take you at your word," So saying he approached the bowl, emptied it of nine-tenths of its contents, and silently dropped the potassium coated pill into the liquid. The potassium danced around the vessel, fuming, hissing and and blazing, as it always does, and seemed on the point of expiring, when to my astonishment and alarm a sharp explosion took place, and in a second of time the water was blazing in a red, lurid column half way to the ceiling.

"For God's sake," I cried," "extinguish the flames or we shall set the building on fire!"

"Had I dropped the potassium into the bowl as you prepared it," he quietly remarked, "the building would indeed have been consumed." Lower and lower fell the flickering flames, paler and paler grew the blaze, until finally the fire went out, and I rushed up to see the effect of the combustion.

"Not a drop of water remained in the vessel! Astonished beyond measure at what I had witnessed, and terrified almost to the verge of insanity, I approached Summerfield and tremblingly inquired, 'To whom, sir, is this tremendous secret known?' 'To myself alone,' he responded; 'and now answer me a question is it worth the money?'

"It is entirely unnecessary to relate in detail the subsequent events connected with the transaction. I will only add a general statement showing the results of my negotiation. Having fully satisfied myself that Summerfield actually held in his hands the fate of the whole world, with its millions of human beings, and by experiment having tested the combustion of sea water, with equal facility as fresh, I next deemed it my duty to call the attention of a few of the principal men in San Francisco to the extreme importance of Summerfield's discovery.

"A leading banker, a bishop, a chemist, two State University professors, a physician, a judge and two Protestant di[illegible] were selected by me to witness the [illegible]ment on a large scale. This was done [illegible] a small [illegible] the sea, but separate[illegible] ridge [illegible] mountains distant not more than ten [illegible] from San Francisco. Every single [illegible] of water in the pool was burned up [illegible] than fifteen minutes. We next did all [illegible] could to p[illegible] Summerfield [illegible] and endeavored to induce him to lo[illegible] and bring it within the bounds of reasonable possibility; but without avail. He began to grow u[illegible] in his demands. The sub-committee [illegible] commenced work amongst the wealthiest citizens of San Francisco, and by appealing to the terrors of a few and the sympathies of all, succeeded in raising one-half the amount within the prescribed period. I shall never forget the woe-begone faces of California street during the month of October. The outside world and the newspapers spoke learnedly of a money panic—a pressure in business, and the disturbances in the New York gold room. But to the initiated there was an easier solution to the enigma. The pale spectre of death looked down upon them, and pointed with his bony finger to the fiery tomb of the whole race, already looming up in the distance before them. Day after day I could see the dreadful ravages of this secret horror; doubly terrible, since they dare not divulge it. Still, do all that we could, the money could not be obtained. The day preceding the last one given, Summerfield was summoned before the committee, and full information given him of the state of affairs. Obstinate, hard and cruel, he still continued. Finally a proposition was started that an attempt should be made to raise the other half of the money in the city of New York. To this proposition Summerfield ultimately yielded, but with extreme reluctance. It was agreed in committee that I should accompany him thither and take with me, in my own possession, evidence of the sums subscribed here; that a proper appeal should be made to the leading capitalists, scholars and clergymen of the metropolis; and that when the whole amount was raised it should be paid over to Summerfield, and a bond taken from him never to divulge his awful secret to any human being.

"With this he seemed to be satisfied, and left us to prepare for his going the next morning.

"As soon as he had left the apartment the bishop rose, and 'deprecated the action that had been taken, and characterized it as childish and absurd.' He declared that no man was safe while that 'diabolical wretch' still lived; that the only security for us all was in his immediate exterpation from the earth, and that no amount of money could seal his lips or close his hands. It would be no crime, he said, to deprive him of the means of assassinating the whole human family, and that, as for himself, he was for dooming him to immediate death.

"With an unanimity that was extraordinary the entire committee coincided.

"A great many plans were proposed, discussed and rejected, having in view the extermination of Summerfield. In them all there was the want of that proper caution which would lull the apprehensions of an enemy; for, should he for an instant suspect treachery, we knew his nature well enough to be satisfied that he would waive all ceremonies and carry his threats into immediate execution.

"It was finally resolved that the trip to New York should not be abandoned, apparently. But that we were to start out in accordance with the original programe; that during the journey some proper means should be resorted to by me to carry out the final intentions of the committee, and that whatever I did would be sanctioned by them all, and that full protection, both in law and conscience, afforded me in any stage of the proceedings.

"Nothing was wanting but my own consent. I asked the privilege of meditation for one hour, at the hands of the committee, before I would render a decision either way. During that recess the above argumentation occupied my thoughts. The time expired, and I again presented myself before them. I did not deem it requisite to state the grounds of my decision; I briefly signified my assent, and made instant preparations to carry the plan into execution.

"Having passed on the line of the pacific railway more than once, I was perfectly familiar with all its windings, gorges and precipices. I selected Cape Horn as best adapted to the purpose, and * * * * * * the public knows the rest.

"Havving been fully acquitted by two tribunals of the law, I make this final appeal to my fellow-men throughout the State, and ask them, confidently, not to reverse the judgment already pronounced."

An Old Hero Gone.

We make the following extracts from a letter to the Pittsburgh Commercial, written from this city under date of May 25, 1871:

A few weeks ago a most extraordinary character and venerable pioneer died at Bridgeport, a few miles below this city, and immediately opposite the city of Wheeling. I refer to Joseph Worley, whose early history and subsequent career have been so intimately connected with the frontier annals of this section of the country, that it is a wonder that his death has been unnoticed by the local press.

Joseph Worley was born in 1769, just one hundred and two years ago. His relatives say that his birthplace was at West Liberty, in Ohio county, now West Virginia, but it is certainly true that whether born there or not, his early childhood was spent in that locality, which is not more than twelve miles distant from the spot where he died.

From his earliest childhood he discovered an aptitude for frontier life. He was particularly skilled in the use of the rifle, and all his early thoughts and plannings had reference to the savage foes that surrounded him.

Some time early in life Worley and his brother Jacob, who seems to have been as heroic as the other, drifted toward Fort Henry, occupying the point where Wheeling now stands, and here they became acquainted with the famous Lewis Wetzel, one of the most noted Indian hunters of American pioneer history. Worley, who was several years Wetzel's junior, was his very intimate friend and his almost constant companion in the woods. On one occasion, having discovered fresh evidences of the presence of Indians in the neighborhood of the settlements, Wetzel and Worley undertook to ascertain their whereabouts. They followed their tracks for several miles, and became so intent upon their prey as to scarcely become aware of the distance they had wandered from the settlements, until they had wandered eleven or twelve miles south, and nearly opposite to the point where the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad now strikes the Ohio river. Here they came upon a camp of Indians, who discovered the hunters about the same time they themselves were discovered. Both parties took to the trees after the custom of Indian fighting, but the Indians greatly outnumbered the others. Six or seven stalwart and trained Indian warriors of the Huron tribe were now pitted against two determined hunters; and, as if to add to the danger of their position, Wetzel was recognized by the Indians as their implacable and life-long enemy. Now began a duel—a running fight—a life and death contest. No reinforcements could reach the hunters until they had travelled at least ten miles, and long before that their wily foes would overpower them in all probability. Yet they determined to sell their lives dearly. Wetzel took command, and Worley obeyed him implicitly. In recounting it oftentimes afterward Mr. Worley grew animated, and nobly attributed to Wetzel the salvation of his life.

A tall Huron warrior was the first to fall. 'He rushed out from his covert with a demoniac yell, thinking that they were unprepared for a sudden attack, or would readily yield to the force of superior numbers. But in this he was mistaken, and his [illegible] paid the penalty. For a moment afterward the other Indians [illegible] and apparently awe[illegible] In that interval Wetzel [illegible] loaded his gun. Several [illegible] fired at him, but he was [illegible]ly shielded by a tree. And so [illegible] tree to tree for four miles, the hunters dodged and crept. Another warrior, in seeking stealthfully to cut off their retreat, was killed, and the others became more cautious. Once Wetzel put his cap on the ramrod, as though he were peering round the tree, and when the Indian shot a bullet through it he let it drop to the ground. The Indians all rushed out, when two others fell. The movements were now carried on, on both sides, with the utmost caution. The hunters worked their way gradually toward the fort, the three remaining Indians becoming every moment more anxious. One of their number, perhaps while carefully climbing a tree on the opposite side from the hunters, with a view of startling them from their lurking place, unconsciously exposed himself and was wounded by one of the hunters; whereupon the other Indians, having trusted so long to the superiority of their numbers, and having a peculiar awe of Wetzel, stole away into the depth of the woods, leaving the hunters to return to the fort to recount what was even then esteemed a marvelously heroic feat. This circumstance was related to your correspondent years ago, when Joseph Worley was even then called an old man.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF ADVERTISING.

A Lesson for Business Men to Consider.

It may be set down as an established axiom that

A GOOD THING, WELL ADVERTISED, WILL SELL.

If the history of the most successful business men in the United States and in Europe were written up, it would be found that one of the chief elements of their success was due to the liberal, systematic, and judicious advertising. There is not one business man in a thousand that appreciates this fact to its full extent, nor are they aware of the power of advertising, as the commercial lever which moves the world. Men of old fogy ideas, with narrow and contracted notions, who rightfully belong to the age of three or four generations ago, view with dismay and consternation the extravagance, as they are pleased to call it, of men like Dr. Helmbold, for example, who spends a thousand dollars a day the year round for advertising. Those old fogy and conservative gentlemen argue in this wise, that if they have a good thing for sale, and a fair price is charged for it, it will gradually win its way into popular favor. But how will it find its way into popular favor? inquires the modern, liberal advertiser. Why, says "Old Fogy," when one person buys the article, and it pleases him both in respect to its quality and price, he will inform his friends and neighbors, and they will go and buy likewise. In other words, "Old Fogy" relies on the purchasers advertising his article for him, for nothing, and biding his time. That system is all very well, if men lived to the great age of the ante-deluvian patriarchs and worthies; men like Methusaleh, who gave up the ghost and "slept with his fathers" at the good old age of 969 years. But the old fogy age system of advertising for nothing won't do in this age of the world. Men of this day do not live half the years of the alotted three score and ten; therefore

THEY CAN'T AFFORD TO WAIT.

Having a good thing for sale at a fair price, and one which the public need and will buy, the modern enterprising men let the public know that they have the article, and the sales are increased a thousand fold in consequence.

Of course there are many ways of letting the public know what you have for sale.

ADVERTISING IS A SICENCE,

some men have a genius for it.—Others are mere clods, and plod along on the beaten track of an idea which has been worn into ruts years gone by. The men of genius, enterprise, and courage, are naturally the pioneers in new systems of advertising, as they are in every other pursuit in life. It is remarkable that new ideas in advertising have kept pace with new ideas in other things. One great reason for this, doubtless, is the facility which the Press affords to the advertiser for reaching the attention of the public. But then, again, if it were not for the money expended in advertising, there would be but comparatively few papers published. The advertising patronage of a newspaper is the pabulum upon which the publisher depends to support the expenses of the publication, and not upon the money received for the papers—that would scarcely pay for the white sheets upon which the matter is printed. There is probably not a newspaper published in the United States that realizes sufficient money in its daily or weekly sales of each successive issue to pay the cost of its publication.

THE MEN WHO ADVERTISE

must contribute the balance, and make up the profits, if any, if they do not, the publication of the paper must cease. It is a failure. Of course this rule applies only to newspapers per se. Literary Journals do not come under this head. Their profits are derived from the sale of the papers, though many of them receive a large annual income from advertisements.

It would be curious to trace the growth in advertising in the last twenty years. If the statistics could be furnished and details elaborated in the shape of tables, by which the reader could see at a glance the number of papers, books, and periodicals of all descriptions published, and the amount of money expended for advertising from year to year for the last decade, and a comparative statement showing the amounts for the preceding decades during the present century, they would be exceedingly interesting. No tables got up by the Bureau of Statistics at Washington would be so much read or commented upon. But that is impossible. It were possible, the tables would show a most astounding amount of money expended in that way. The name of Dr. Helmbold has been mentioned above. We do not wish to be invidious; but as he is the most extensive advertiser, and spends more money than any other one man in the United States, we will give some details of his advertising, for the purpose of affording the reader an approximate conception of what is done:

Dr. Helmbold has been advertising for twenty years. He has expended in that time, for advertising, more than four millions of dollars. This includes the money paid for rock and board painting, posters, cuts, "snipes," etc. It does not, however, include the Doctor's famous team.

We will take a recent advertising exploit of Dr. Helmbold's as further illustration of the good effects of advertising.

On the first day of April 1871, Dr. Helmbold commenced advertising his new celebrated Catawba Grape Juice Pills. On that day simultaneously appeared, in five hundred leading daily papers of the United States and the Dominion of Canada, of from one column to a whole page, an advertisement appeared—one column in length—in three thousand five hundred daily and weekly papers, magazines, periodicals, etc.

It was a big adventure. One hundred thousand dollars gone at one dash, all to tell the public about of which they never heard before, and which Dr. Helmbold said he was willing to sell for fifty cents.

WHAT WAS THE RESULT?

The Doctor's experience in the field of advertising had not been in vain, nor had his knowledge of human nature and the confidence with which he could depend upon the people's intelligence and judgment been misplaced. He possessed one great advantage, it was true—Dr. Helmbold was well-known to the people. Said he, in his advertisements:—"This pill I have thought of offering to the afflicted for ten years. They are now perfect and I shall stake my time, money, and fame on their effectiveness." He had never deceived them before, and when he said his pills were an excellent blood purifier and purgative the people believed him, and the consequence was that orders immediately came from all parts of the country. Every mail came freighted with bushels of them. Dr. Helmbold was prepared,

HE KNEW THEY WOULD COME.

Every order was filled, as quickly as it was received. Each succeeding week brought an increase of orders. The first month the Grape Juice Pills were put into the market, orders for 3,000 gross dozens had been filled and sent away; and for this month of May, that is to the 25th, the day this article was written, there have been sold 4,800 gross dozens, showing an increase of sale, allowing for the difference of time, of 100 per cent.

As it may not be uninteresting to the public, we will state how Dr. Helmbold manages his advertising department. He has two men, brothers, P. H. Kearney and J. G. Kearney, each having separate and exclusive offices in the Palace Drug and Chemical Warehouse, 594 Broadway. These gentlemen, with two assistants, attend to nothing else but advertising. They, with the Doctor's advise and concurrence, make contracts directly with the publishers of all the papers and periodicals they advertise in in the United States. The Messrs. Kearney go through each successive number of every paper and periodical in which Dr. Helmbold's advertisement appears, and see that they are correct, checking them off and making an entry for each advertisement, in a book for that purpose. The Doctor's newspaper postage alone, per quarter, is $350, paid in advance.

He expends at the present time $1,000 per day for advertising, exclusive of posters, circulars bills, cuts, etc.

One great feature of Dr. Helmbold's advertising is his originality. He is the first man that commenced the fancy and novel style of display repetition. He is the first man that conceived the initial style, the chequered column, and other attractive modes of catching the eyes of the reader. In all cases his advertising was immediately copied by others. Electroplate advertising, still adhered to by many advertisers to save expense, Doctor Helmbold dropped seven year ago. It was very good in its time, and a cheap mode of advertising, but it won't do now. The Doctor likes to change his "ads." from time to time, so as to give his readers something new to ponder over; and that can't be done with the electroplate.

Enough has been said to prove to any "old fogy" the value of advertising. If there are any persons who do not believe it, let them test the question for themselves.

Capt. Jos. O'Brian's Certificate.

I have now used, for the past nine or ten years, for myself, and in my family, DR. KEYSER'S PECTORAL SYRUP. Indeed, there has not been a time within that period that I have not had occasion to use it, especially in the winter season. I have always been cured by it, and have had some very severe colds. During the present winter I have had severe coughs and colds several times. Sometimes I was so much afflicted with hoarseness, that I could scarcely speak above a whisper, and in every attack I have used DR. KEYSER'S PECTORAL SYRUP, with a certainty of cure. I would advise all who are troubled with coughs and colds to try this medicine, as I think my experience in its use will warrant me in doing so. It is the most reliable medicine for the purpose I have ever used and I have used a considerable quantity. I have recommended it to a great many persons, and I have always had a good account of its effect; every one of them, as far as I know, has been benefited. For a recent cough or cold, its curative power is really astonishing, as every one will find out by one trial. You are at liberty to use my name, and publish this, if you see proper to do so. I am well known in this city. Yours, &c.

—The Jackson Whig and Tribune of the 27th says a young man named Lee Cox, killed his uncle, Millner Cox, near Lexington, Henderson county. An estate of five or six thousand dollars in money was left in Texas to the Cox family. Young Lee Cox went out and drew the money, and about the time of the murder, old man Millner Cox, one of the heirs, who some time ago moved from this county to Arkansas, was in Henderson county, taking legal steps to get all or part of the legacy. A misunderstanding of a violent character took place between the old man and nephew, resulting as above stated, in the death of the uncle. The young man insists that he killed his uncle for slandering his (Lee Cox's) mother.—Memphis Avalanche.

Yesterday, D. F. Glassmire, the celebrated troutest, caught a trout in the Allegheny river, below town, which weighed, when dressed, one pound and seven ounces.

OFFICIAL documents at Washington show that the number of distilleries in operation in the United States on the 1st of June reached 214, with a total daily capacity of 192,059 gallons. Of this number Pennsylvania, has the honor (?) of owning and controling thirty-six. Who can compute the vast amount of good (?) these thirty six distilleries will accomplish this year in our State?

IT is clear to the most obtuse vision that if it had been in France instead of the United States that Jeff Davis started his confederacy, he would not now be tearing round the country making secession speeches and abusing the government that spared his miserable neck. Jefferson may thank his stars that Columbia has not adopted the "European plan" of dealing with traitors.

THE Detroit Free Press thinks that the Democratic party having come to the Republican platform there is no further excuse for the existence of the Republican party. That is like a certain class of reformed drunkards, who think life-long abstainers have no right to express views on the Temperance question. New converts frequently manifest an excess of arrogant zeal.

ANDY JOHNSON seems to be as irrepressible as ever, and if his recent speeches in Tennessee are reported correctly, he has made but little progress in the art of telling the truth. Take this as an illustration: In his speech at Knoxville a few days ago, he repeatedly stated that the amount on which the United States is paying interest is $2,500,000,000, and the annual interest $150,000,000 in gold. The truth is that the total of all descriptions of bonds is but $2,000,000,000, and the interest now but little more than $110,000,000.

THE Indianapolis Journal testifies to the great efficiency of Vallandigham to the Republican party. He gave the Republicans the grandest victory they ever won in Ohio. He prepared such a platform for McClellan, at Chicago, as to make the re-election of Lincoln a certainty. He caused the nomination of Seymour, by a dramatic performance over done in Tammany Hall. And now, the Journal is of opinion, he has provided for the re-election of General Grant. Vallandigham certainly has been one of the staunchest and most important planks in the Republican platform.

THE Chairmanship of the State Republican Committee has been tendered to the Hon. Linn Bartholomew of Pottsville, Pa. In answer to the letter informing him of his appointment, he declines on the ground of professional engagements during the summer, which will claim his undivided attention. The correspondence on the subject will be found elsewhere in the ARGUS of today. Mr. Russell Errett, of Pittsburgh, has since accepted the Chairmanship, and called the Committee together at Altoona, June 21st.

THE particulars touching the bribery cases in Allegheny county will be found elsewhere in the ARGUS of to-day. Politically speaking, one party can make nothing off the other in canvassing these transactions, for while one of the corruptionists was elected as a Republican the other was chosen as a Democrat. We are heartily glad that these official scoundrels were taken by the throat and that, for once, corruption receives the punishment it deserves.

If a few of the miserable wretches who make merchandise of their votes, influence and cunning from time to time at Harrisburg were taken hold of as these commissioners were in Allegheny county, a healthier moral sentiment would soon prevail among the people and their State Legislature would no longer be regarded as the speedy road to wealth for its members.

A SINGULAR state of things are said to be developing at Columbus, Ohio. "There is trustworthy information from that city that at the late Democratic Convention Gen. Ewing was really nominated instead of McCook for Governor. On the final ballot as announced McCook had 225 and Ewing 191. Two persons of prominence in the party, who kept full and careful tally sheets, agree that Ewing really received 243 and McCook only 221. The mistake arose entirely from unintentional mistakes in counting up delegations. By a blunder of one of the Sec'ys, the tally sheet from which the announcement was made was used twice, and hence the difficulty in ascertaining the exact official count. The State Democratic Committee will meet in a few days to consider the matter.

EVERY now and then some enthusiastic editor brings General Sherman out for the Presidency. A recent letter from the General has brought all this kind of work, so far as he is concerned to a stand still. Here are his words on that subject:

"I have been skirting the Texas frontier for the past month, and here for the first time I meet files of the Eastern papers, by which I see that quite an unnecessary muss has been raised by the purported speech made by me at the supper of the Union League Club of New Orleans on the night of my departure from that city. Whoever reported that as spoken by me committed a breach of propriety, for I was assured by the President of the society that no reporters were present. Now, as to politics, I think all my personal friends know my deep-seated antipathy to the subject. Yet, as you seem not to understand me, I hereby state—and mean all I say—that I never have been, and never will be a candidate for President; that if nominated by either party, I should peremptorily decline; and even if unanimously elected, I should decline to serve.

VALLANDIGHAM at the ratification meeting held at Cleveland after the adjournment of the Democratic State Convention, commenced his address in an extraordinary manner, comparing the Democratic party to dry bones, and himself to St. Paul. We transcribe from The Cincinnati Enquirer, a Democratic organ: In the valley of vision were many bones, and they were very dry. And the spirit said, "Can these bones live?" And we prophesied, and there was a noise and a shaking among the dry bones, and breath came into them, and they lived and stood upon their feet, an exceeding great army—the army of the Democracy rallied again. [Applause.] And he said, "Watchman, what of the night? Watchman, what of the night?" And the watchman said, "The morning cometh, and the night also—the night, the dark night, of death to the once pursuing but now broken hosts of Radicalism, [cheers,] and morning, glorious, bright, resplendent, light and life-giving morning to the once disheartened, but now rallying and heroic hosts of the Democracy. I am here not as the Messiah, but an apostle, and the least of the apostles.

MANY of the Democratic papers go a great stretch out of their way to hit General Grant a "lick." Here is the kind of a "blow" the Washington Examiner of last week gives him:

> Grant has appointed a son of Brigham Young, the great Mormon leader, a cadet to West Point. It may be instructive to Irishmen in this country to know that while Grant thus honors the son of Mormon, he has refused to appoint the son of that gallant Irishman, Gen. Meagher, who distinguished himself by his services in the Federal army during our late civil war.

Now, see what the facts are: The New York Tribune, a newspaper whose statements on matters of this character can always be relied upon, squelches the above story in this wise:

> Mr. R. B. Roosevelt has written a letter in support of the ugly story that General Grant refused an appointment as cadet at West Point to the son of General Thomas Francis Meagher and gave it to the son of Brigham Young,—a story which is false in both its branches. Mr. Roosevelt seems to have been asked to nominate young Meagher, but as "appointments of this character "are valuable patronage" he preferred to save the place for some one else if Meagher could get a nomination from the President. He waited therefore until he "was informed that the President "had filled all his appointments." Then he sent in Meagher's name, and the young man was duly gazetted. But it now appears that Meagher was one of the President's ten appointees, and when his list was sent to the Secretary of War it was returned with the information that he had already been nominated by Mr. Roosevelt. Was our distinguished representative from the IV District deceived into the belief that General Grant would not appoint Meagher? or is it impossible that he only made a little miscalculation of time, and expected to have his nomination returned, with the information that the President had anticipated him?
> —As for the Mormon cadet, he was not sent to the Academy by the President, but by the Delegate from Utah, Mr. Hooper.

THE speeches recently made by Jeff. Davis, in some of the Southern States wherein he expressed the belief that the "Lost cause" was not lost, but would eventually triumph, are bringing upon him hearty censure from the better class of newspapers in his own section. The Richmond Enquirer, goes for the rebel chief in this wise:

> We tell Mr. Davis that the Southern people are tired of his sort of talk. Their purpose and object are to unite with the great Democratic party of the North, and to try to beat the Republicans in the Union. This can be done if we are not embarrassed by such imprudent utterances as those of Mr. Davis. And if Mr. Davis persists in bringing himself before the people, and expressing such sentiments, there is one course to pursue—and that will be pursued: the Southern people will disavow him and all such extremists, and act without them. There will not be a baker's dozen of them left from the Potomac to the Rio Grande.—It is too late in the day to talk about "not accepting the situation," and the very last man in the South to have avowed that sentiment was ex-President Davis.

IF any considerable portion of the people in the Northern States believed that Secession died with the dismemberment of Lee's army, let them study the temper of the people of the Southern States, read Jeff. Davis' recent speeches, and measure the meaning of the following words uttered by Gen. Toombs of Georgia, a few days ago. His language is here given by a special correspondent of the New York Tribune. He says:

> In a few minutes Gen. Toombs came in, and soon commenced to talk politics. I told him that he was understood to represent the most ultra wing of the Democratic party in Georgia, and that I was desirous of learning his views upon political questions. "Yes," he said, "I am one of the red-hot kind." "What do you think of the new departure of the Northern Democracy, as expounded by Vallandigham and the Pennsylvania Convention? Shall you support it?" "Never. I would sooner vote for Horace Greeley than for any Democrat upon such a platform. Greeley and the Republicans first got it up; it's their patent, and I have more respect for them than for such scoundrels as Vallandigham, who wants to steal their ideas." Mr. Toombs spoke at some length in this style, declaring finally that the people of the South could never be brought to accept the Constitutional Amendments as finalities, and that if the Democratic party took that ground they would have nothing to do with that party. "What do you look forward to in the future?" I asked; "how can you escape the results of the war?" "We will fight you again just as soon as we can get ready," he answered; "and I believe we can get ready much sooner than most people think." "You cannot seriously believe that the South will attempt another war?" "I certainly do, and I believe that I shall live to see Southern independence. Many of our people are losing the hope that they will see 'Shiloh' in their day, but they are training their children up to take up the work."

THE Republicans of Crawford county have voted almost unanimously to sustain the popular vote system of making political nominations.—The Democrats of Washington county at their convention on last Monday declined to nominate candidates for the Legislature. They appointed L. K. W. Little, A. C. Bryant and Dr. George H. Cook Legislative conferees, but gave them no instructions as to whom they should support.

ON some of the Western railroads they have what are called ladies' cars, to which no male passengers are supposed to be admitted unless accompanied by ladies. This is an agreeable arrangement for ladies and their escorts; but, as it frequently happens that the only other cars provided are exceeding filthy and unpleasant, it is not always satisfactory to gentlemen who are traveling alone. On the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago Railroad last February, a Mr. Kimball had taken a seat in one of these ladies' cars, and, after accomplishing a portion of his journey, was ordered by the brakeman to move into another car. Declining to do so, he was grasped and held by the conductor while the brakeman and another man beat him severely. For this, the railroad company, by the verdict of an Indiana jury, have been compelled to pay the sum of twenty-seven hundred and fifty dollars; and it serves them right.

THERE is an extremely troublesome ghost in Racine, Wis. A widower there, doubtless being lonesome, has taken a second spouse, and now the shade of his first visits him and beclouds, by her presence, his honeymoon. He had solemnly promised No. 1 never to lead a No. 2 to the altar; but having broken his word, and that, too, in a most indecent hurry, he is now suffering the consequences, and must submit to be Candled by the indignant departed. Perhaps by keeping a bright look-out, and sleeping with one eye open, he may find that it is his neighbors, who have taken umbrage at his conduct. Indeed, a sufferer has been known to be tarred and feathered for the same imprudence.

A GENTLEMAN who carries round the contribution box in one of the Episcopal churches in New York is made the subject of an unpleasant communication in The Church Weekly. While taking up the offertory, this shrewd christian bore a bank-bill in his hand, with a view to making the flock think that he intended to put it into the plate, instead of which he slyly placed it in his coat-tail pocket, and when he got back to his pew he returned it to his wallet. Decoy-ducks are sometimes useful, but they seem rather out of place in the Temple; and this gentleman must doubtless be a lineal descendant of those sharp ones who did a big brokerage business in a very improper place in Jerusalem, and were "cast out" by divine authority in rather an unceremonious way.

HERE AND THERE.

—A young lady of Bainbridge, New York, made a bargain with Curtiss Cooper some fifteen years ago, whereby she was to have a "ewe lamb and its increase until she was twenty-one years old," in exchange for a gold watch key. She was but six years of age at the time, and now sues Mr. Cooper for 18,064 lambs, or their value, which, at four dollars per head, is $64,536.

—Gen. Grant's son Fred, who graduates at West Point this year, has all the obstinacy, smoking propensities and nonchalance of his father developed in undiminished intensity. Some time [illegible] made allusions to his father, and [illegible] whipped as to be laid up [illegible] several days. A second and third time he tried it with the same result, but, venturing upon a fourth encounter, he came off victorious.

—The commencement exercises of the Washington and Jefferson College will take place on the 28th inst., at 9 o'clock in the morning in the Town Hall. President Hays will preach the Baccalaureate sermon on the evening of the 25th inst. On the 27th there will be a re-union afternoon, of the Jefferson class of 1841, when an address will be delivered by Rev. W. M. Robinson of Mercer. After the commencement exercises are over there will be a dinner given in the College Hall to the Alumni and strangers of distinction. The graduating class numbers eighteen.

—David Hoffman of Wooster, O., is the proprietor of a strictly first-class haunted house, wherein spirits, or something else, play the most fantastic and mischievous tricks. Among other things the invisible presences carry off and destroy money, clothing, and furniture; thrust pins into the inmates when asleep, and so persecute and annoy them that they are well nigh crazed. Hoffman himself is financially ruined. Hundreds of the citizens have visited the house, and tried in vain to unravel the mystery.

—There is about as disgraceful a squabble up in Brentwood, N. H., as any which we ever heard of. In a certain school-district, the county poor-house is situated. The County Commissioners claim the right to send the poor children to this school; the district authorities deny this right; the pauper pupils are refused admission; and finally, by way of clincher, the school is closed altogether. We have not stopped to inquire what lawyers would say upon this question, and we need not stop to ask what would be the opinion of decent Christian moralists. If this wonderfully exclusive school-district can help these unfortunate boys and girls to a little culture, at an expense which will hardly ruin the tax-payers, we advise a general amnesty and the immediate reopening of the school.

—An Iowa paper states that 26 years ago James McWhorter and his wife Rebecca were living happily together in Salem, in that State. When gold was discovered in California James went there, and the wedded couple corresponded regularly, until stories reached Rebecca's ears that her husband had married another woman. Thereupon Mrs. McWhorter procured a divorce, and after a year or two married again. Her second lord soon died, and some months since she learned that James was still living alone and prospering in the Golden State; that all the stories which had been circulated were malicious falsehoods. A mutual understanding was reached. James returned to Iowa, and a few days ago was married over again to his own wife and a dead man's widow. They are represented as happier than ever now; and as they can hardly live long enough to quarrel again, their new connubial future may be deemed secure.

—A physician in the Grand Army Journal tells this ghastly joke: I remember one day in making my hospital rounds, a patient, just arrived, presented me an amputated forearm, and in doing so could scarcely refrain from a broad laugh; the titter was evidently on his face. "What is the matter? This does not strike me as a subject of laughter." "It is not, doctor, but excuse me. I lost my arm in so funny a way that I still laugh when I look at it. Our first sergeant wanted shaving badly, and got me to attend to it, as I am corporal. We went together in front of his tent; I had lathered him, took him by the nose, and was applying the razor when a cannon ball came, and that was the last I saw of either his head or my arm. Excuse me, doctor, for laughing as I do, but I'll be especially blasted if I ever saw such a bully thing."

—A letter from St. John's Newfoundland, May 24th says: Information has been received there of the total loss of a small coasting schooner, with no less than 40 men of the crews of the Nimrod and Hector who took passage in her. The poor fellows were inhabitants of Old Pelican and were returning to their homes with the proceeds of their successful voyage. They were nearly all married men with families. The vessel has not since been heard of, and on May 23 a part of the cargo was picked up at sea. It is supposed she struck on an iceberg during the darkness and went down immediately. The little village is a scene of mourning and woe, nearly every family having lost a member.

—The Kittanning Republican says that a chain ferry has been established at Sarah Furnace to accommodate the travel to and from the Armstrong oil field and other points.

Indian Raid.

TORONTO, June 9.—The evening Express publishes the following: We have received positive information from private and trustworthy sources that the Indians have come down in force upon the Hudson Bay Company's buildings at Shebandoan, and have burned their steamers and buildings, and all the material, together with all the tools; they have also stolen all the provisions in the store. The condition of affairs is most alarming and it is impossible at present to guess the extent and meaning of this sudden and destructive attack. The people are in a state of the utmost terror.

Fearful Storm.

IOWA CITY, June 9.—About four o'clock this afternoon the most fearful storm ever witnessed in this section broke upon us. Rain and hail fell in torrents for about forty minutes, accompanied with a fearful wind from the west. Considerable damage was done in the city, and it is supposed great damage to the crops and fruit in the country was done. The dry good store of D. Griffiths, on Clinton street, was unroofed, and the entire stock, one of the finest in the city, completely deluged. Damage probably $5,000. The fine red brick dwelling of Mrs. H. D. Downey had the west gable end blown out, and the contents of the house considerably damaged. St. Joseph School building, on Iowa avenue, had one end blown in. It is reported that two or three other houses were unroofed in the outskirts of the city. One man is reported killed. Fruit and shade trees were blown to the ground in all parts of the city. New Trinity church building, in process of erection, was injured some. It is impossible to give the entire amount of damage.

Sad Accident.

TROY, N. Y., June 9.—Last night just as the Cohoes Mills were closed a man named Richard Kerr was rowing a boat in the Upper level feeding the mills. Four girls, Maggie McNutt, Mary Jane Gallaher, Bertha Redwood and Martha Campbell asked for a sail. Kerr came ashore and took the girls in and rowed out, but the boat being too small the girls became frightened and the boat upset within ten feet of the waste gate leading into an arched passage 300 feet long. Kerr seized Miss Gallagher and clung to the timber in the arch until they were rescued. Miss Belle Ferguson, saved Martha Campbell. Miss McNutt and Miss Redwood were carried through the passage. The former was drowned. Miss Gallagher and Miss Redwood are both in a precarious condition.

The Chairmanship of the Republican State Central Committee.

The following letter was sent to Hon. Linn Bartholomew, tendering him the Chairmanship of the Republican State Central Committee:

PHILADELPHIA, June 6, 1871.—Hon. Linn Bartholomew, Pottsville, Pa.—Dear Sir: The undersigned, candidates of the Republican party for Auditor General and Surveyor General, in connection with the Hon. Wm. Elliott, Chairman of the late Republican State Convention, appreciating highly your valuable and long-continued services to the party, unite in tendering you the position of Chairman of the State Central Committee for the fall campaign.

Awaiting an early answer, we are yours, very truly,

D. STANTON,
ROBT. B. BEATH,
WM. ELLIOTT.

Mr. Bartholomew's letter declining the proffered honor reads as follows:

Gentlemen—Yours of the 6th inst. came duly to hand. I assure you I appreciate your kindness in tendering me the position of Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, and return my thanks for the flattering words in which you make the offer, but however much inclination might lead me to accept the position, duty to my party bids me to decline it. My time will be very much occupied during the summer with important professional engagements. The importance of the campaign and the influence its results will have upon the whole country, demand that he who accepts the position should give it his undivided attention. This I cannot do. Ever willing to render aid and serve in the ranks of the party, there are so many others better qualified to organize it that I request your acceptance of this declination, and ask that the honor and duty you have tendered me will be placed by you in the hands of some other, who will serve the party far better than I can possibly do. With full confidence in the success of our cause in the coming contest, I remain,

Yours truly,
LINN BARTHOLOMEW.
POTTSVILLE, June 7, 1871.

THE NEW DEPARTURE.

A Leaf From the History of its Author.

[From the Chicago Republican.]

The New York Tribune, in discussing the Vallandigham new departure, attributes to Mr. Vallandigham whatever of honor there may have been in the nomination of Seymour in the New York Convention of 1868. We are a little astonished that a paper so well informed in National and New York State politics as The Tribune usually is, should be so easily deceived by a trick through which a neophyte should clearly see.

It would take more space to tell the true history of Seymour's nomination than would be justified by an event of so little importance to the country. But there is manifest historical untruth in putting Vallandigham forward as the champion of Seymour—or as one favoring the nomination of that gentleman at all. Vallandigham went to New York in 1868 with no intention of taking an active part in the Convention. He was not an elected delegate, and he was known to be hostile to the claims of the Ohio candidate—Mr. Pendleton. He was boarding in a quiet house up-town, far removed from the strife and turmoil of the Fifth Avenue and the St. Nicholas. The writer of this article was the first to call upon him in his seclusive retirement. In reply to a question as to who was his candidate and what he proposed to do, he replied that he had no candidate, and he didn't propose to do anything. He was very positive, however, that Pendleton had no chance for the nomination, and this fact, so far from grieving him, seemed to cheer him very much. He felt bitter toward Pendleton and his friends because they had helped Thurman in the recent Senatorial election. "Now," said he, "if Mr. Pendleton thinks he's God Almighty, let him go ahead."

As soon as Val.'s presence in the city became known, the Pendleton men caucused on the best means of pacifying him, and it was quickly resolved to vacate a seat in the Ohio delegation for his benefit. This was done, and Val. accepted with alacrity, pledging himself to stand by Pendleton while there was a chance for him, but well knowing there was no chance. On the evening of the first day of the Convention, Vallandigham had a long conference with the New York delegation, in which the subject of Chase's nomination was agitated at considerable length. There was little or no opposition to it, and the only question in dispute seemed to be as to the best means of bringing his name before the Convention. Several meetings and conferences were held—at each of which Vallandigham was prominently present. He had by this time thrown off his outward shell of indifference or neutrality, was inwardly rejoicing over Pendleton's defeat, and was openly advocating the nomination of Chase.

Finally, the night before the nomination of Seymour, Mr. Vallandigham met a few friends, by special invitation, at the Manhattan Club rooms, and it was then and there arranged that at a certain stage of the next day's proceedings, Vallandigham was to put Seymour in nomination, and Seymour was to decline in favor of Chase, who was thereupon to be put through with a hurrah. This programme was spoiled by a little squabble for personal precedence among the Ohio delegates. Mr. George W. McCook insisted on thrusting himself forward to do all the talking and make all the motions for the Ohio delegation. It was he, we believe, who first suggested Seymour to the Convention. Vallandigham made a very neat speech, apparently to his acceptance, but really as we have reason to know, "to give the old fellow time to get his wits about him and nominate Chase." We know, also, that when Seymour, "swearing he would ne'er consent, consented," there was not a more indignant person in the City of New York than C. L. Vallandigham. Before he left Tammany Hall that day he did some of the tallest swearing known to modern statesmanship. He said he "never saw a good thing so nearly done, and then so badly botched."

THE VICE PRESIDENT'S ILLNESS.

What He Says of it Himself.

In a letter to the New York Tribune concerning his recent illness, Vice President Colfax says:

I think I have studied out the causes of the attack which prostrated me so suddenly on the 23d of May. A bronchial affection of several years' standing, caused by over-much speaking in the open air, had been aggravated this spring into a severe bronchial catarrh, accompanied with slight billious derangement. When the President convoked the Senate, I left for Washington in such impaired health that I told my family it was the first time in twenty years I had gone to a post of duty with reluctance, but that if I stayed at home it would surely be attributed, though unjustly, to hostility to the pending treaty of peace and reconciliation. Although occupying the chair every day of the session, I was under medical treatment the whole time. And, so far from the statement being true which has been so widely published, that I "smoked five or six strong cigars that day on an empty stomach," I smoked but one, just after breakfast, six hours before the attack.

I have had three previous attacks of vertigo (two while speaking,) and have been warned by medical friends of the peril of a more dangerous attack, but have failed to heed the warning. For the past ten years, certainly since first elected to preside in the House eight years ago, when my constituency became wider than a single district, I have never risen in the morning, here at Washington, that I have not felt I had twice as much work to do that day as there was really time for. A correspondence of all conceivable inquiries and all kinds of business, etc., often extending to hundreds of letters per week, I have attended to myself, in addition to official duties, always in hours stolen from rest, and frequently in hours stolen from sleep. The very day I was attacked, having felt the oppressive atmosphere of the Executive session more unpleasantly than usual, I left it, and going to my room, wrote a large number of letters, to catch up with arrears of correspondence. Returning to the Chair at four o'clock afternoon, the blow fell ten minutes thereafter.

It is the old story of mental strain without relaxation. But, after this serious warning, I intend to "mend my ways," and to recognize that there is a limit which even the strongest constitution will not allow to be exceeded.

Let me, in conclusion, correct another erroneous statement, that I was not able to talk for a week after the attack. Every day I conversed with my physicians and attendants; but, feeling the necessity of quiet, I declined conversing with nearly all others who visited my room.

Yours truly,
SCHUYLER COLFAX.

A Dozen Reasons Why the Democratic Party Must be Defeated.

1st. Because the Republican party, as a political organization, has been faithful to the country, defended its life against its enemies, and maintained its authority when it was denied by traitors.

2d. Because the Democratic party, as a political organization, was in open sympathy with the men who banded and armed to disrupt the Union, and who for six years warred the sacrifice of thousands of lives, and millions of dollars, to destroy the government.

3d. Because if there had not been a Republican party, we would not now have a government. The strength and patriotism of the Republicans of the land, and the unwavering devotion of their leaders, alone saved the Union and perpetuated the government.

4th. Because if there had not been a Democratic party, slavery would never have attempted rebellion. The covenant into which the Democracy were willing to enter, with the slave-masters, encouraged them with the hope that treason would be successful, as they believed the Democratic party of the North would be strong enough to prevent troops from going South to contend with rebel organizations.

5th. Because the material resources of the nation have always been protected by Republican policy. The labor which is now prosperous owes its vitality to the invigorating policy of Republican rule.

6th. Because the influence which used slavery to crush a free government is now willing to allow foreign pauper labor to destroy free labor.

7th. Because the only reliance which the creditors of the country have for the security of their investments, is in the Republican party being kept in power. Repudiation is as sure to follow Republican defeat as rebellion was the direct result of Democratic teaching.

8th. Because our system of internal improvement, now so potent in its influence for good, would, by Democratic victory, become a prey of a corrupt lobby, ever ready to use the representatives of the people in furtherance of schemes to plunder private and public enterprise.

9th. Because the Democratic party, as an advocate of direct taxation, would restore the tax on real estate, repealed at the instance of a Republican Governor.

10th. Because the Republican party has secured for the American people a foreign policy by which we now wield more power in Europe than our government ever possessed in the old world, by reason of which millions of our bonds are held by European creditors.

11th. Because the Democratic party having been sad yet being ready to make a merchandise of human flesh, would not hesitate to barter in the honor of the Government, once they got it in their possession.

12th. Because the Republican party can be trusted, having been tested and found faithful.—Harrisburg State Journal.

—The Huntingdon Journal says: A little son of William Focht, of this place, died on last Monday of lock-jaw. The facts of the case, as near as we could learn them, appear to be as follows: A number of children were engaged in athletic sports. They were leaping over each other. Young Focht was caught by a colored boy, somewhat his senior, and thrown over his shoulder, spraining his spine very severely, which gave him great pain and terminated in lock-jaw, with which he suffered for several days up to the time of his death. The injury was the result of the merest accident.

NEWS SUMMARY.

—On the evening of Decoration day the A. & G. W. Railway station at Greenville was burned. All the freight in the building, including a keg of powder, was destroyed amid great noise. The loss was about $1,500.

—One day last week, a boy named Widge, of Brady's Bend, died from eating some poisonous substance. He had been in the woods a greater part of the day previous to his death, and it is supposed that there he had eaten some poisonous root. His sufferings were said to be terrible.

—Those two tough old ducks, Mrs. Susan B. Anthony and Mrs. Cady Stanton, are about starting to California on a quacking expedition. If they should happen to fall in with old Drake, formerly of the Senate, what a virtuous time they would have, to be sure.

—Trolling for eagles is the latest amusement in Erie. A sportsman, while fishing with a spoon hook, was surprised to see a huge eagle dash down on the bait and swallow it, thus securely fastening him. He was hauled to the boat, and made such desperate exertions to break away that his wings had to be broken before he could be captured.

—A woman down-east thought it mighty hard that she couldn't be allowed to clean house if her father was dead. She didn't know what a man wanted to die for, just when the carpet were all up and everything topsy-turvy. We can ourselves sympathise with the feelings of the old girl, in such a dilemna. But some fathers are so unreasonable.

—A curious fact, which throws a great deal of light on the character of Louis Napoleon, is that he never opened the highly important reports which his confidential military agent at Berlin, Col. Stoffel, sent him from 1866 to 1869, and in which that keen-sighted observer predicted all the calamities which befell the imperial armies in 1870. These reports were found in the private cabinet of the emperor at the tuilleries with the seals unbroken.

—On Monday, May 29th, between 5 and 6 o'clock, in the evening, Mr. A. Shriner, a cabinet maker residing on Front street, Kanawha, Va., called at the sawmill of Messrs. Woodruff, Blish & Co., to procure a bill of lumber. While standing near a circular saw, which was in rapid motion, his dog came bounding in, and he, in trying to prevent the dog running on the saw, stepped upon a roller which turned and caused him to fall against the saw, first sawing off a hand and then an arm, and through the body, cutting through the heart and tearing out his liver, thus mangling his body in a terrible manner, which caused instant death. Every possible effort was made to extricate him, all in vain.

—The St. Louis Democrat says Platte county, Mo., can boast of the oldest married couple in the State, perhaps. Jacob Busey, aged eighty-seven in February last, and Elizabeth Busey, aged eighty-two in October last, and have lived together sixty-one years. The old gentleman assisted in knocking the packing from England's Packingham, at New Orleans, in 1815. The Baltimore Sun thinks that will do for Missouri, but says there is a couple in Baltimore, Capt. J. Clackner and his wife who were married in 1805, and still have no cause to appeal to Indiana laws. Capt. Clackner was born in 1778, the day of evacuation of Philadelphia by the British in the revolution. His wife is ten years younger. They have lived together sixty-five years, have raised a family, and the Captain is to-day engaged in business.

—In an article on Modern Man-Haters—who are women, of course—The Saturday Review remarks: "This sect of modern man-haters is recruited from three classes namly—those who have been cruelly treated by men, and whose faith in one-half of the human race can not survive their own sad experience; those restless and ambitious persons who are less than women, greedy of notoriety indifferent to home life and home duties in disdain, with strong passions rather than warm affections, with perverted instincts in one direction, and none worthy of the name in another; and those who are the born vestals of nature, whose morale falls below the sweeter sympathies of womanhood, and who are unsexed by the atrophy of their instincts as the other class are by the perversion and coarsening of theirs. By all these men are held to be enemies and oppressors; and even love is ranked as a mere matter of the senses, whereby women are first subjugated and then betrayed."

Medicinal.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS
Hundreds of Thousands
Bear testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY?

THEY ARE NOT A VILE
FANCY DRINK.
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell.

$100 will be given for an incurable case, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

ATTENTION
Is called to our large stock of
WALTHAM
WATCHES
And we submit the following reasons why they should be preferred to any other American Watches.
In the first place, the Waltham Company is the oldest, and has had fourfold the experience of any others engaged in the business in the United States.
In the second place, the machinery in use by the Waltham Company is far more perfect and varied, and as a result its Watches are of far higher grade and of greater variety, and are placed in the market at much lower prices than any others, quality and style fully considered.
In the third place the Waltham Watch is now a staple article. Its reputation fully established, and, as a consequence, it is sold at less profit, than any others in the market.

Notice to Steamboat Captains, Owners of Vessels, &c.

Take Notice, That I have erected, and am now operating, A WIRE FERRY across the Ohio River at Smith's Ferry Beaver county, Pa. The following letter from Daniel Daugherty, esq., an Engineer of New Brighton, Pa., gives some particulars touching this Ferry that will be interesting to Steamboat men and others concerned.

JESSE SMITH.

"NEW BRIGHTON, PA., May 30, 1871.

DEAR SIR:—Jesse Smith, esq., (of Smith's Ferry, Beaver county, Pa., who has heretofore operated a ferry across the Ohio river, at that place, has recently been making a change in the motive power. For the purpose of running the new ferry he has stretched an iron cable across the river. This cable is one and one-half inches in diameter, and is anchored on the right bank in rock, one hundred and six feet above high water mark, or the flood of 1832; and one hundred and forty-six feet above low-water mark of Sept 10th, 1838. On the left bank it is supported by a tower fifty-one feet and six inches high, the cable being at that point one hundred and two feet and six inches above high-water mark; the length of the cable between the points mentioned is 1880 feet, and it is fifty-seven feet and six inches above high water mark at the lowest point, or over one hundred feet above low-water mark—there being a sag of 45 feet at the lowest point of the cable. The whole length of the wire is 2100 feet, and is made of steel manufactured by John Roebling's Sons, Trenton, New Jersey, and weighs three pounds to the foot. The hoisting apparatus was constructed by A. Hartupee, of Pittsburgh. The boat was built by Scott, Boyle & Co., and is of the following dimensions: Length 75, width 16 feet, and depth 3 feet; and draws but 7 inches of water light.

To Drovers, Stock-Dealers, Teamsters, &c.

The undersigned is now operating a Wire Ferry on the Ohio River, between Smith's Ferry and Georgetown, and is prepared to carry passengers, stock of all kinds, teams, &c., at the customary prices.

Thankful for the liberal patronage heretofore bestowed, he respectfully asks for a continuance of the same. [je7;3t] JESSE SMITH.

PUBLIC NOTICE.—On and after May 6th and until the 1st of September the County Commissioners, will meet only on Saturday of each week, at their office in Beaver. JOHN M'GOUN, Clerk. ma3;tf]

Strawberries have been tolerably plenty on our streets during the past two weeks, but their season is now about over. During the past few days they brought ten cents per quart and a little slow at that.

WE invite our friends to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere. Orders carefully and promptly filled. JOHN STEVENSON'S SONS & CO., 93 Market St., Pittsburgh. [je7-1y.

Teachers of Beaver county will read with interest Prof. Taylor's new advertisement of the Seminary that appears in our columns to-day. They will nowhere find a better managed or more thorough school. The Professor is a practical teacher. Call and get a catalogue or write for one.

THE latest and best styles of Jewelry, in all its various branches, to be found at JOHN STEVENSON'S SONS & CO., 93 Market St., Pittsburgh. [je7-1y.

The Chardon Democrat says there lives in that township, under the same roof, two husbands, two brothers-in-law, two wives, two sisters, a father and son, a step-son, a daughter-in-law, a father-in-law, a sister-in-law, a brother-in-law, and only four persons in all.

Watch Repairing.—If your watch is out of order, send it to JOHN STEVENSON'S SONS & CO, Pittsburgh, it will be repaired and returned free of express charges. All work warranted. [je7-1y.

An Elocutionist Married.—The New York papers announce the marriage of Mrs. Anna T. Randall, an elocutionist of some note, and who has on several occasions visited Beaver, to a Mr. Israel Diehl, an ex-consul to Java. The newly married couple will sail for Europe in the course of a couple of weeks.

Watches, Watches.—The most complete line in the city of Pittsburgh, and all the necessary attachments, to be had of JOHN STEVENSON'S SONS & CO., 93 Market St., Pittsburgh. [je7-1y.

Brutal.—A couple of human animals hired a horse and buggy at Norris' livery stable, one of the warm days of last week. They drove at a terrific rate to East Brook, where the horse, overcome by the heat and hard driving, dropped dead. The men were arrested and are now lodged in the county jail. The authors of such cruelty to animals should be severely punished.—New Castle Gazette and Democrat.

Golden Fountain Pen.—Something new and novel. Be sure and read the advertisement in our paper headed "Greatest Invention of the Age." We believe the Golden Fountain Pen is unsurpassed. A good pen is a necessity to every man, woman and child. Agents here is a chance to make money in introducing a good and saleable article. 1y.

☞ 1,000 Reward will be paid by the proprietor of Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery for a medicine that will equal it in curing all the diseases for which it is recommended. In the cure of severe and lingering Coughs, Bronchitis and diseases of the lungs it is without an equal. Sold by all druggists.

Bribery in Allegheny County.—A few weeks ago two of the County Commissioners of Allegheny county were arrested, on a charge of having received bribes, a short time previous, while applications for licenses to sell liquors in that county were being heard before them. During the early part of last week the matter was brought before the Grand Jury and true bills found against both—Messrs. McGee and Neely.

The indictment against Commissioner McGee charges him with having received three bribes from Frank Anderson, of Pittsburgh—the first on April 20th, 1871, of $20, the second on May 5th, of $25, and the third $50, at a subsequent date; also, that he received a bribe of $100 from Charles Quinn, April 4th; one hundred dollars on May 4th from Mrs. Smith, of West Pittsburgh; one hundred dollars on May 2d from Henry Willard; one hundred dollars on April 24th from Owen Corcoran; one hundred dollars on May 4th from Alex. Scott, and one hundred dollars on May 28th from James O'Rourke.

The indictment against

COMMISSIONER NEELY

Charges him with having received a bribe of twenty-five dollars from M. Arenholtz of East Birmingham; one hundred dollars from Joseph Dieteric of the same place, on the 4th of April; one hundred dollars from Lewis Schmidt, of the same place, on the 2d of May; one hundred dollars from John Roth of same place; one hundred dollars from Jacob Dietz, of Birmingham; one hundred dollars from John Eicherly of Pittsburgh, and one hundred dollars from Abram Work of Port Perry.

On last Thursday the alleged corruptionists were before the Criminal Court of Allegheny county, and Mr. Neely plead guilty to the following counts in the indictment: First—receiving on April 1st $15 from Wm. Arenholtz, of East Birmingham; second—receiving $25 from the same party on May 2d; third—receiving $25 from the same individual on May 3d; fourth—receiving from Lewis Schmidt, of East Birmingham, on May 2d, $100. By his plea, therefore, he admits having accepted bribes to the amount of $165.

Mr. McGee also plead guilty to four of the counts in the indictment, viz: that he accepted bribes amounting to eighty-five dollars from Frank Anderson, of the First ward, as follows: April 20th, twenty dollars; May 5th, twenty-five dollars; and on the same day forty dollars; he also pleads guilty to receiving, on the 28th of April last, one hundred dollars from James O'Rourke, of the First ward, Pittsburgh. The Court ordered at once that the recusants should appear on Saturday for sentence.

On Saturday last Messrs. Neely and McGee were sentenced, each, to pay a fine of $2,000, and imprisonment in the county work house for one year. The sentence seems to meet the approbation of all good citizens.

A FACT.—It is an undisputed fact that Mrs. Bence's Hats and Bonnets are universal favorites. She has just received another lot of Hats, Bonnets, Flowers, &c. Give her an early call, one door below U. P. Seminary, Beaver. je7-3w

The Wool Trade.—The trade in wool in this locality, has not opened as briskly as buyers were led to anticipate. Messrs. Orr & Cooper of Beaver are paying from 46 to 50 cents per pound, and have stored several thousand dollars worth at these figures, but holders as a general thing seem to think that prices will range higher, and are accordingly not hurrying their wool into market. Whether prices will go up higher or come down lower, is of course a question not easily determined just now yet at present quotations that commodity commands a better price than for the past three years.

FOR BARGAINS, in Hats and Bonnets, of the latest styles, go to Mrs. Bence's, Beaver. je7-3w

The Festival held at the Presbyterian Church in Beaver on Tuesday evening of last week was a very decided success. The arrangements throughout were complete and a large crowd of people were in attendance, all of whom seemed to enjoy themselves and the edibles provided for the occasion with no little degree of satisfaction. The net amount of money realized was about $90. The proceeds are to be expended for the use of the Sabbath School connected with that church.

The following directions are given for the benefit of those who wish to practice the "kangaroo droop," now the rage among the city butterflies: "A glove with three or four buttons is selected, so that the wrist may be as long as possible. The wrist of the left hand, and also that of the right hand, if it is not engaged with an Alpine parasol, is brought close to the breast, and then the hand is permitted to fall, palm downward, as it all muscular action were lost." The effect, if the "grecian bend" has been thoroughly acquired, is superb.

Diptheria Cured with Lemon Juice.—The Health and Home, a very excellent health journal, says: Some time ago Dr. Revillout, in a paper presented to the French Academy of Medicine asserted that lemonjuice is one of the most efficacious medicines which can be applied to diptheria, and he relates that when a dresser in the hospital, his own life was saved by this timely appliance. He got three dozen lemons, and gargled his throat with the juice, swallowing a little at the same time, in order to act upon the more deep-seated parts. The doctor has noted numerous cases of complete success obtained by this method of treatment.

Waltham Watches.—Being Agents for the sale of these Watches in the City of Pittsburgh, we are confident of our ability to please in styles and prices. JOHN STEVENSON'S SONS & CO., 93 Market St., Pittsburgh. [je7-1y

A Mayor Bothered by Anonymous Letters.—The New Castle papers contain a card from M. B. Welsh, esq., the Mayor of that city, in which he alleges that scarcely a day passes but that he receives an anonymous letter on some subject or other, and requests these miscreants to come out and show themselves and state exactly what they are after.

Treat them gently brother Welsh. The fellows who write anonymous letters, are the salt of the earth, and deserve the greatest consideration. We have two or three of them in this town who are No. 1 men; nevertheless if any other county in Pennsylvania desires to have them, we will assent to their immediate departure.

Thanks.—Phillipsburg Soldiers' Orphans' met in their Hall, Saturday and passed the following resolution of thanks:

Resolved, That we tender our most hearty thanks to Messrs. Henrici and Lens and the Economy Society, for a supply of most splendid flowers for "Decoration Day," and for other very substantial favors, and to Captain John V. McDonald for his generous and voluntary supply of ice and other favors.

The Whisky Traffic in Ohio.—The Columbiana county (O.) Buckeye State says: Under the law, which gives to sufferers by the sale of intoxicating liquors the right to recover damages sustained by the sale of liquor to husbands, the women are doing more to prohibit the flow of whisky than all the laws put together that have ever been placed upon the statute books of Ohio. All over the State, the poor unfortunate wives and children of drunken husbands and fathers are availing themselves of the benefits of this law to defend themselves from threatened starvation. The law is a good one, and no one need fear its penalties unless he wishes to violate the law, and sell to his neighbor that which beggars his family and steals from him his senses and makes him lower than the brute.

Closed for Enlargement.—Noss' Gallery in New Brighton, will be closed about the 15th instant, for three weeks, for repairs and enlargement.

A Horse thief was jugged in Butler, week before last. It is alleged he stole a horse from Ephraim Adams of Slipperyrock township, Butler county on the day previous, which he sold in Middlesex township for $5, a watch, and the verbal promise of $50, in two weeks. This sale raised suspicion which caused his arrest in Butler; and singular enough, at the time of the arrest, Mr. Adams arrived, and identified his property. Mr. Smith, the name of the alleged thief, was committed for trial, and will probably take quarters eventually at the Penitentiary.

FLAVORING Extracts and Essences—a fresh assortment at the Beaver Drug Store.

About Eggs.—There is a hen (black Spanish) in Hartford, Conn., which surpasses all barn-yard fowls in egg-production. For five successive days she laid two eggs daily; then she rested herself for a short time by confining her struggles to one egg per diem; but when Sunday came she braced herself up to do justice to the occasion, and laid three! A Sabbatarian hen, it may be said; but wait for the mortifying sequel! Of these three Sunday eggs, one proved perfect, one was all white, and one was nothing but yolk—the poor fowl in her hurry having carried on rather a confused manufacture. This bird reminds us of some popular authors, whose first work is good, whose second is all white, whose third is all yolk, and of whose fourth both gods and men refuse to say anything.

Phillipsburg Soldiers' Orphans.—The pupils of the soldiers' orphans of the Phillipsburg school, who visited Pittsburgh on Decoration Day and participated in the procession in honor of the dedication of the monument, held a meeting on Saturday, and adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, that we, the soldiers' orphans of the Phillipsburg school, return our most hearty thanks, and hereby express our highest appreciation of the special kindness shown us during our visit to the city, on the occasion of dedicating the soldiers' monument; to the several military committees; to Captain N. M. Smith, Major E. A. Montooth, General Pearson and General Rowley; to the escort, Messrs. Hunter, McClure, Woodwell and Timmony, and to the Grand Army of the Republic in general, to His Honor Mayor Brush and Mr. William Reinhart, for valuable assistance; to Mrs. Watt, Mrs. Preston, Mrs. McKee, Miss D hm, and other ladies, and Messrs. Smith, Preston, Moore and others, who provided so splendid a feast for us at City Hall, which was so abundant that it not only satisfied our appetites to their fullest extent, but the kind friends filled our pockets and our baskets; to Major John W. Haney and the other gentlemen who furnished their very comfortable conveyances; to the drivers and their aids who sought to make our ride as comfortable as possible; to Mr. A. A. Carpenter, for his water coolers; to the many citizens for the kindness we received: to Mr. A. M. Marshall and lady, for a splendid time enjoyed on their ground, to which we were generously invited to rest before taking the cars; to the railway employees for their special attention, and to the Economy Society for a fine supply of flowers.

Our thanks, is all the present return we can make. Hoping and praying that we may never dishonor the kindness so generously bestowed, but that by a life of obedience and study, industry and usefulness, we may show our appreciation of the great care of this great State, and of the unwearied attentions of our foster parents (Mr. and Mrs. Taylor(, and the teachers, and the kindness of so many friends.

House Burned.—On last Thursday, at about 11 o'clock, p. m., a frame house in Georgetown, this county, owned by Benjamin Laughlin, was discovered to be on fire and before its progress could be arrested the house and its contents were destroyed. The building, at the time of the fire was occupied by an old gentleman and his wife named Johnston, who are by this casualty rendered almost destitute. There was an insurance on the house for $3,000. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

STILL ANOTHER.—On last Wednesday morning, the house of Charles Halder in Economy township, took fire, as is supposed, from a defective chimney, and burned down. The furniture was saved. An insurance of $1,000 was held on the building. The Phœnix of Hartford held the risk.

SOMETHING FOR HOUSEKEEPERS.—Red Turkey Damask, Red Turkey Napkins; Canary colored Tablecloths and Napkins; Handsome Willow Table Mats; The Anti-moth Stair Rods; White Linen Window Blinds and Trimmings; Window Blinds in all colors; Working Baskets: Carpets, Oil Cloths, Rugs, Matting, Lace Curtains, Tidies, lower than Pittsburgh prices, at J. M. McCreery & Co's.

Court House Improvements.—The Grand Jury of this county have on several occasions, recommended the erection of vaults in the county offices for the better preservation of the official records, &c. The County Commissioners have recently taken the subject into consideration, and after a careful study of the matter have concluded not to build vaults, but rearrange the floors and flues of the different offices, and to cover them all with corrugated iron. This iron will be about one-sixteenth of an inch in thickness, and will, it is believed, render them fire-proof. The whole improvement, it is estimated will cost about $1,500; while the cost of the erection of the vaults recommended, would have fallen little short of $4,000

The Beaver Ladies' Seminary was sold last Saturday. A Mr. Reed of Sewickley was the purchaser, the price being $7,100.

BEAVER VALLEY ITEMS.

—The butchers of Beaver Falls, New Brighton and Fallston are to have a "Show Beef Procession," on Friday June 30th, when they will march through the principal streets of those villages, preceded by a bovine weighing two thousand and six hundred pounds. The animal was raised in Butler county, Pa.

—On Saturday 27th ult., the relatives of Fleming Gaspers, deceased, an Italian—who was drowned by falling from a steamboat, and on whose body an inquest had been held by Coroner Corbus on the 25th ult.—exhumed his remains on Hog Island; took them to Rochester and were about to ship them to Allegheny for interment, but were prevented by Coroner Corbus who, on account of the advanced decay of the body, and the intolerable effluvia polluting the atmosphere from every crevice of the wooden coffin, deemed it prejudicial to the public health to proceed further, and ordered the body immediately placed under the ground, which was accordingly done.

—On Monday 5th inst., J. H. Graves, an Englishman about twenty years of age, was drowned while bathing in the mill race, near the head-gates, Beaver Falls. He is supposed to have had the cramp. There had been a party in at the same time, and he was not missed until, in dressing, it was discovered that a suit of clothes lay on the bank unclaimed. The water was drawn from the race, his body recovered, the Coroner notified, a jury summoned and a verdict rendered in accordance with the above facts.

A Strange Presentiment.—The Scranton Republican tells the following sad story of one of the victims of the late Pittston disaster: "William James expired about three o'clock on the afternoon of the Tuesday following the catastrophe, and was the last added to the list of those upon whom the death-angel laid his hand in that awful havoc. He was a Welshman, and had been in this country about seven months. On the morning of the dreadful day in question he had taken his breakfast, and his wife had made ready his dinner and set the pail beside him. For some time he sat wrapped in thought, his arms folded, his eyes fixed vacantly upon the stove, and a deep melancholy apparently brooding over him. He was aroused from his reverie by his wife telling him that his dinner was ready, and that he would be late, as the bell had rung. He started to his feet, and gazing upon her for a moment with a look full of tenderness and significance, said to her, 'If I should not come back alive, would you be in such a hurry getting me out?' The wife answered 'No,' but remarked that 'if he was going at all it was time he was gone.' He lifted his pail without saying a word, and after kissing his wife kissed his four little children, who were sitting playing on the door step. When he had got about fifty yards from his home he returned again, and kissed his wife and children once more with great fervency. His wife noticed that he was the victim of gloomy forebodings, and as he turned away she was about to entreat him not to go to work if he apprehended any danger. But hope and courage and the pressing necessities of their family overcame her intention, and she let him go. She stood in the door and watched him on his way to the fatal pit. When at a point where he turned out of her sight, he paused and cast a wistful look toward his home and little ones, and seeing his wife, waved with his hand a last adieu. He parted with his loved ones forever."

A Small Pox Remedy.—As the small pox seems to be visiting several localities not very remote from Beaver, we reprint the following which may accomplish some good: A correspondent of the Stockton (Cal.) Herald writes as follows: I herewith append a recipe which has been used to my knowledge in hundreds of cases. It will prevent or cure the small pox though the pittings are filling. When Jenner discovered cow-pox in England, the world of science hurled an avalanche upon his head, but when the most scientific school of medicine in the world—that of Paris—published this recipe as a panacea of small pox, it passed unheeded. It is as unfailing as fate, and conquers in every instance. It is harmless when taken by a well-person. It will also cure scarlet fever. Here is the recipe as I have used it, and cured my children of scarlet fever; here it is as I have used it to cure small pox; when learned physicians said the patient must die, it cured: Sulphate of zinc, one grain; foxglove (digitalis,) one grain; half a teaspoonful of sugar; mix with two tablespoonfuls of water. When thoroughly mixed, add four ounces of water. Take a spoonful every hour. Either disease will disappear in twelve hours. For a child smaller doses according to age. If countries would compel their physicians to use this, there would be no need of pest houses. If you value advice and experience, use this for that terrible disease.

Greenville had a sensation on Monday, created by the report that a woman with the small pox had been put off an emigrant train on the A. & G. W. Road, and that she had been at the station several hours. The town authorities, upon investigation, discovered that it was true, and immediately took steps to have her removed, and taken to friends, whom we learn reside near Sharpsville. The affair created quite a furore and it was whispered at one time, that they would burn the station, which threat was carried out on Tuesday night, and that old eye sore went up in smoke and is now numbered "among the things that were."

An Insane Man Brought to Jail—Strategically he Beats his Captors.—A man named George White of Greene township, who has been insane for a short time back, became alarming to his neighbors last week, and it was thought advisable to take him in custody, and await the action of the Court as to what disposition should be made of his case. Constable B. Swearingen, of that township, was ordered to arrest him, but as White was a person of considerable physical strength, he deemed it prudent to summon to his assistance Messrs. William Sterling and Henry Stewart. The three started off after White, on horseback, and on their approach he fled across a fence and into a thicket. They at once dismounted, hitched their horses, and into the thicket after him they went. White, it seems, understood a thing or two and instead of penetrating the thicket any considerable distance, he merely secreted himself in its edge, and when the officers rushed past, he turned back, mounted one of their horses, and started off at full speed toward the Washington county line. An exciting five mile chase soon followed, resulting in White's capture, and incarceration in the county jail, on last Thursday.

Attention is directed to the advertisement of J. M. McCreery & Co., in another column of this week's ARGUS. They have a large assortment of the different articles usually found in a first class trimming store, all of which will be disposed of at a moderate profit. Give the new house a call.

A soldier's orphan, was brought home to New Castle dead, on Thursday last, from the Mercer Soldiers' Orphan School. He had attended the memorial exercises at Mercer on the 30th ultimo, and was overcome by the exercise and extreme heat on that occasion; and he died on the following Thursday.

A Preacher on the Wing.—Rev. A. B. Way was formerly the leading clergyman of Alliance. He could make longer prayers, and preach with more earnestness, than any other clerical gentleman in the town. However, some time since he became entirely too sociable with some of the good looking sisters, and had to quit preaching. As he made his bread and butter by preaching, they stopped when his preaching stopped. He was not inclined to work with his hands, and in order to raise some funds, he forged notes to the amount of two or three thousand dollars. Last week his crime came to light, and a warrant was issued for his arrest. The Rev. gentleman becoming suspicious that he was about to be arrested, suddenly got very sick and unable to get out of bed, and was allowed to remain in his house, the officer waiting till he would be a little better before he would remove him to prison. On Sunday night he recovered his strength very suddenly, got out of bed, procured a horse and buggy, and is now probably on his way to Utah or Canada.—Ex.

Oil in Butler County.—On three occasions recently, a trembling of the earth was observed at North Oakland Church, six miles east of Butler, Pa.; and immediately subsequent to the last phenomenon, oil was discovered on the surface of the water of a well owned by Adam Richart, in that vicinity. It has been visited, and proves beyond question to yield a pint of light colored petroleum to the bucket full. The evidence is conclusive, that oil exists there; and it is expected it will soon be developed.

A Valuable Cow Killed.—Mr. Milo Somers, residing a short distance below Beaver, lost a cow valued at $100 last week, by being struck by the locomotive of one of the trains on the Cleveland & Pittsburgh Railroad. No damage to the train.

THOUGHTS ON GOING TO CHURCH.

Some go to church just for a walk,
Some go there to laugh and talk,
Some go there the time to spend,
Some go there to meet a friend,
Some go there to learn the preacher's name,
Some go there to wound his fame,
Some go there for speculation,
Some go there for observation,
Some go there to doze and nod,
But few go there to worship God. B.

Enforcing the Liquor Laws.—Lima, Allen county, Ohio, with a population of 4,700, has formed a joint stock association, with $50,000 to enforce the State liquor laws. All of the leading citizens have entered this league, and the first prosecution was made a week ago against a woman liquor seller and her landlord, by a wife in behalf of her husband. $200 was sued for as the damage this wife sustains by the drunkenness of her husband. Each lawyer had the pleasure of a woman client, and nearly two days and two nights were spent in the trial without a result.

Principia, Non Homines.

MR. EDITOR:—How ennobling it is to a man, to be governed by stern principle, in the presence of the unprincipled, who never consider how mean a thing it is to act utterly regardless of principle; of honor, or uprightness.

We have men of this stamp among us; and it is to be hoped that their noble example, and high appreciation may conduce much to multiply their number all over our happy land.

One of this sort, said to me, the other day, that he had been twice a candidate for Congress and twice for the Judgeship; but, had never condescended to treat any man to vote for him; or, to buy in any shape, any man's patronage. He never drank himself, nor would he offer liquor to another at any time, under any circumstances. He related to me the following fact: In a certain village, when the election was to be held, when he was a candidate, a friend stepped up to him and said, "Well Mr. ——, I am a friend of yours, and I intend to vote for you. I suppose you will treat us now." Others being present at the time and place, whose attention, of course was arrested to the forthcoming dialogue. After a moments pause, Mr. —— looking him in the face, replied: "Why friend, I don't drink myself, and whisky is a nasty, dirty thing; and, besides that, it is injurious; I would not like to treat a friend of mine, or any one else, to what I despise, and believe to be hurtful."—And, just let me say to you further, friend; how would you feel after the election if some one would say of you "that fellow sold his vote for a gill of whisky." But, now see here, my friend, to let you know that it is not stinginess on my part that constrains me to decline to treat you, as you wish me, if you will now hunt up a dozen of your friends—we expect to have dinner here presently—and bring them along, I will pay the bill. But I heard no more after that, about treating; nor did this man come back for his dinner. I did not know however, but that he might make use of this to my detriment in the election; so I was careful to notice the returns subsequently, from that township, and found that I was as successful there as everywhere else. Principle should govern us, and it is the best policy. PRO BONO PUBLICO.

The quarterly sales of the Sheriff took place in Beaver on last Saturday. Quite a number of persons were in attendance, and a considerable amount of the property advertised, was disposed of.

Tribute of Respect.

The following preamble and resolutions were adopted by Darlington Lodge I. O. of G. T., June 10th, 1871:

WHEREAS, God in his mysterious providence has came very near our hearts by removing from us by death, our dear sister Emma Burton. In the contemplation of this sad bereavement, we deeply mourn that one possessing so many excellencies of character, so much love for the cause of temperance, one whom we loved for her many noble qualities, and who was endeared to us by the strongest ties of sympathy and affection. While we bow submissively to our Heavenly Father's will, we desire to express our heart-felt sorrow occasioned by her sudden death, therefore,

Resolved, That in this sad dispensation of providence we are all reminded of the certainty of death, and the necessity of preparation for that life which is eternal.

Resolved, That as sister Burton was a pattern worthy of example, and as she was so unselfish and earnest in her labors for the Temperance Cause, so will we with renewed vigor imitate her example by raising higher the standard of total abstinence.

Resolved, That we sympathize with the bereaved family in this hour of their affliction, and would commend them to Him who is ever ready to comfort the sorrowing ones.

Resolved, That as a tribute to the memory of our departed sister, our Regalia be draped in mourning for the period of sixty days.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be published in The Keystone Good Templar and our county papers.

Our Arrangements and Facilities.—We are prepared to give prompt attention to those who arrive by the R. R. cars or steamboats and wish to depart the same day.

Persons at a distance wishing to obtain medicines for their friends, will bring a specimen of urine for examination, or have it sent by Express.

The patients will be careful to take the first urine passed after a night's rest, and in all cases to give their age.

The latter is necessary to a correct diagnosis as well as to the regulation of the quantity of medicine prescribed.

We would like to have the name and residence also of every patient.

The advantages of this will be apparent to all, but especially to those who may wish to send back for a second course of medicine.

We keep a regular record of each analysis and prescription, by comparison with which, we are enabled on subsequent examinations to determine the improvement in the case, and make the required changes in treatment when necessary.

The facilities which Packet Boats and Express Lines furnish for quick transportation of small packages, to and from every point within five hundred miles of this place, make it sufficiently convenient for the treatment of all chronic diseases. In fact, this system of diagnosis, conducted upon the latest scientific principles of Urino-Pathology, is far more certain and much more to be depended on, than the usual "pulse and tongue" examinations alone.

Golly, I's swallowed!—The Bucyrus Journal says that at the Democratic State Convention a big darkey stood behind the Crawford delegation, who, as soon as the resolution was passed endorsing the 15th Amendment, startled the crowd by exclaiming: "Golly, I's swallowed!"

Presbyterianism. — If anything were needed to prove the wealth, power, and liberality of Presbyterianism in this country, it might be found in the fact that the Presbyteries represented in the Reunited General Assembly, now in session at Chicago, have raised during the last year, in addition to the usual contributions to missions, Sunday-schools, etc., the sum of $7,607,499 as a special Memorial Fund, to commemorate the union of the Old and New Schools in one body. This fund is to be devoted to colleges, seminaries, church extension, extinguishment of church debts, erection of parsonages, houses of worship, etc. Other denominations may have what they call more "liberal" creeds than that of the Presbyterians, but they may be challenged to exhibit the evidence of greater liberality in contributing money for the support and propagation of their faith.

While life's dark maze I tread,
And griefs around me spread,
Be thou my guide:
Bid darkness turn to-day,

Nor let me ever stray
From thee aside.

Godliness is profitable for Kings and Presidents, and for all that are in authority; for men and for women, and all of us, that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all honesty. (1 Timothy 2, 2.) For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Saviour; who will have all men to be saved, and come unto the knowledge of the truth. For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus; who gave himself a ransom for all; to be testified in due time. Great is the mystery of Godliness; but, with contentment, it is great gain; follow after it. God teaches us that it is for our profit to walk therein, and by leading us in that way, he shows us that his teaching and his leading harmonize. And, there is such a way in which we should go, refer to Isaiah 48, 17. "I am the Lord thy God which teacheth thee to profit, which leadeth thee by the way that thou shouldest go." VERITAS.

THE SURE ROAD TO SUCESS;

A WORD TO AGENTS.

There is no scarcity of books to sell. But the great success of an agent lies in his selecting that work which meets the wants of the times, and deals most powerfully with the living issues of the day. The recent efforts of the enemies of Protestantism to banish the Bible from the Public Schools, and the late attempts in the Legislature of New York and Illinois to legalize this outrage upon our civil and religious liberties, have aroused in the minds of all true Protestants a desire to know and have circulated a more thorough knowledge of the intents and purposes of this great organization, which boast they will possess this country before the close of the Nineteenth Century. THE OPEN BIBLE deals with these questions, and the readiness with which the first two editions have been sold is sufficient proof of the interest felt in the book.

CURES DISEASES OF THE THROAT, LUNGS, LIVER & BLOOD

In the wonderful medicine to which the afflicted are above pointed for relief, the discoverer believes he has combined in harmony more of Nature's most sovereign curative properties, which God has instilled into the vegetable kingdom for healing the sick, than were ever before combined in one medicine. The evidence of this fact is found in the great variety of most obstinate diseases which it has been found to conquer. In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. By its great and thorough blood purifying properties, it cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short all the numerous diseases caused by bad blood are conquered by this powerful purifying and invigorating medicine.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have [illegible] taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy. For the cure of Habitual Constipation of the bowels it is a never failing remedy, and those who have used it for this purpose are loud in its praise.

The proprietor offers $1,000 reward for a medicine that will equal it for the cure of all the diseases for which it is recommended.

Sold by druggists at $1 per bottle. Prepared by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Sole Proprietor, at his Chemical Laboratory, 133 Seneca street, Buffalo, N. Y. Send your address for a pamphlet.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH PERFECTED!—T. J. & H. J. CHANDLER have purchased the exclusive right of Beaver county to use Dr. Stuck's Patent by which they can put up Vulcanite as thin as Gold Plate, with a beautiful enameled polish; and so light and elastic as to perfectly adapt itself to the mouth; obviating all that clumsy and bulky condition, so much complained of heretofore; and lessening their liability to break 100 per cent. Indeed, no one seeing it would be willing to wear the old style plate any longer than they could conveniently get them exchanged. All branches of Dentistry performed in the best and most substantial manner. In filling teeth with gold, etc., we challenge competition from any quarter, and can refer to living subjects whose fillings have stood between thirty and forty years. Among the number Hon. John Allison will exhibit fillings we inserted some 35 years ago; the teeth as perfect as the day they were filled. Laughing Gas prepared on a new plan, freeing it from all unpleasant and dangerous effects, making the extraction of teeth a source of pleasure rather than of horror and pain. Prices as low as any good dentist in the State. Office at Beaver Station, Rochester Pa.

EYES.

"The bright black eye, the melting blue,
I cannot choose between the two;
But that is dearest all the while,
Which wears for us the sweetest smile."

There is much truth in these last two lines. The eyes we love best are the best eyes, the most beautiful to us. But all eyes are not alike, and all have not the same meaning. Black and brown eyes say different things to the blue or gray eyes. Each has a story of its own, and a way of telling it. There are eyes which glow with passion, eyes that languish with love, eyes which sparkle with mirth, eyes that flash with indignation. Some are calm and serene, others troubled and restless. Some penetrate right through you, some entreat, some command, and some are meaningless, and have a vacant stare till the mind stirs within, and illumines them. The first thing which generally strikes us in looking at the eye is its size. Large eyes have always been admired, especially in women, and are considered essential to the highest types of beauty.

We read of "large spirited eyes," and "eyes loving, large," of little sparkling beady eyes to which the terms loving and spirited could never be applied.

The Arabs express their ideas of woman's beauty by saying she has the eye of the gazelle, and the eye is ever the theme of their song. Homer repeats the epithet, "the ox-eyed Queen," whenever he alludes to Juno, and indeed beautiful eyes are not confined to the human race, but give likewise expression to the head of the horse, the dog, and many of the nobler animals.

The most beautiful eyes have a long rather than a wide opening. Eyelids which are widely expanded so as to give a round form to the eye, like those of the cat and owl, indicate ability to see much, with little light, and receive readily mental impressions from surrounding objects; on the contrary, eyelids which more closely cover over the eye, denote less facility of impression, but a clearer insight, more definite ideas, and greater steadiness and permanence of action.

Round-eyed people see much and live much in the sense, but think less. Narrow-eyed persons see less, but think more, and feel more intensely. Persons with prominent eyes are always found to have great command of language, and are eloquent speakers and fluent writers. But it may be observed that as a projecting eye most readily receives impressions from all surrounding objects, so it indicates quick and universal observation, but a lack of close scrutiny and perception of individual things. Such eyes are everything in general, but nothing in particular. Deeply-seated eyes, on the contrary, receive more definite, accurate, and deeper impressions, but are less readily impressed, and less discursive in their views. Dr. Redfield says that the wrinkles observed in some faces, running outwards and upwards from the eye, indicate probity or personal truthfulness. "Persons with this sign large," he remarks, "are always noted for keeping their promises, and for performing what they agree to do. They are perhaps slow to make promises, especially if their organ of cautiousness be large, but when made you may trust them."

There has been a great deal said and written on the subject of various colored eyes. Arranging all the various colored eyes in two grand classes, light and dark, we would say that the dark indicate power, and the light delicacy. Dark eyes are tropical, and, as an American physiognomist has observed: They may be sluggish, the forces they betoken may often be latent, but they are there, and may be called into action. Their fires may sleep, but they are like slumbering volcanoes. Such eyes generally accompany a dark tle intellect, or strong passion." Light eyes, on the other hand, belong naturally to the temperate regions, and they are temperate eyes. They may glow with love and genial warmth, but they never burn with a consuming fire like the torrid black eyes. The accompanying complexion is generally fair, and the hair light, and persons having them are mostly amiable in their dispositions, refined in their tastes, highly susceptible of improvement, and mentally active and versatile. The light-eyed races have attained a higher degree of civilization than the dark-eyed races. When the complexion and hair are dark, and the eyes light, there is generally a combination of strength with delicacy.

Black eyes are of four kinds. First, the small, brilliant, hard black eyes, which look like beads, and which one might crack like a cherry stone; secondly, the glowing, cavernous black eyes, hiding smouldering fires; thirdly, the soft, swimming, sleepy black eye; and fourthly, the large, well-set and finely formed black eye, "solemn as the hush of midnight, still as the mountain lake, yet full of thought, intellect, passion and feeling, which can rise in a storm till the quiet service glows again; an eye that has no need of words, that never smiles, but knows the warmth of tears; an eye that goes straight to the heart with a single glance, and never more leaves it; an eye that does not entrance like the blue, but draws you steadily and surely on, and touches chords in your heart which have been untouched before, and can never wake for lesser power again." The first may be the eye of a vain beauty and belle; the second may be found in many an inmate of Bedlam; the third languishes in the harem of the Turk, and the fourth is so rare, it is hardly ever met with—it is very beautiful, and also the most dangerous of all. Buffon says that "there are no black eyes, but those supposed to be black are only yellow-brown or deep orange. They appear to be black," he affirms, "because the yellow-brown shade is so contrasted with the white of the eye that it appears black."

Brown eyes are often confounded with hazel; but, though hazel eyes are brownish, they deserve to form a separate class.

"Thy brown eyes has a look like birds Flying straightway to the light."

"The true brown eyes," says an anonymous writer, "have a softness and beauty peculiarly their own. Some are eager, quick and merry. They often go with light hair, and fresh fair complexions, and their laughing brightness, their frank glances, are as different from the cooler and calmer look as light from darkness. Others have a reddish glow, or rather an auburn light, which gives them a peculiar charm, especially if the hair match, shade for shade. Others, of a more decided brown, go with black hair and dark complexion, pale or brilliant as the case may be; and others are large and soft, with a starry light within.

Hazel eyes, or light brown eyes, have a character of their own, different quite from the true brown. There are two kinds of hazel eyes—the dark hazel with a blue shade, and the light hazel, in which green, yellow and blue all mingle, and predominate according to light or emotion. Some periodical, in speaking of hazel-eyed women, says that "a hazel eye inspires Platonic sentiment, and that a woman with these eyes never talks scandal, is unselfish, never talks too much or too little, is always agreeable and intellectual, and that the dark hazel eye is as noble in its significance as in its beauty."

Gray hazel is the sign of shrewdness and talent; the blue hazel amiable but feeble. Another writer observes that "hazle eyed women are quick tempered and fickle;" but there is no opinion expressed relative to hazle eyed men.

Gray eyes are of many varieties.—We will pass over in silence the sharp, the shrewish, the spiteful, the cold and the wild gray eye. Every one has seen them—perhaps too often. There are some that belong only to the gallows; there are others of which any honest brute would be thoroughly ashamed. But then, again, there are some beautiful enough to send a fellow wild, and those are the gray eyes I mean. There is the dark, sleepy, almond-shaped gray eye, with black lashes. It goes with the rarest face on earth—the beauty with jet-black hair and a complexion neither dark nor fair.

Then there is the calm, clear, gray eye—the eye that reasons when that only feels. It looks you quietly in the face, it views you kindly, but dispassionately. Passion rarely lights it, and love takes the steady fire of friendship when he strives to enter in. The owner of that eye is upright, conscientious and religious. It is, perhaps, the eye of a Joan of Arc, a Florence Nightingale, but not for the fairy of a household hearth—she would wear another guise.

Lastly comes the mischievous gray eye, with its softness and its large pupil, which contracts and dilates with a word, a thought, or a flash of feeling; an eye that laughs—that has its sunshine, its twilight, its moonbeams and its storms; a wonderful eye, that wins you whether you will or not, and holds you even after it has cast you off. No matter whether the face be fair or not; no matter if the features are irregular and the complexion varying, the eye holds you captive, and then laughs at your very chains.

The poets have praised blue eyes more, perhaps than any other kind. An Italian writer says, "Eyes with the same witchery are those of Psyche which caught Love in his own wiles." Blue eyes which borrow their tints from the summer sky what eyes they are! how they dazzle and bewilder! how th[illegible]lt and soften! The large[illegible] blue eye, with the golden [illegible] the faintly traced brow [illegible] of heavenly purity [illegible] The calm, sad blue ey[illegible]ills through one's heart [illegible] glance, the widely opened [illegible] which flashes upon you with a glorious light, with a smile that makes your head whirl, and with a meaning that you never forget.

And green eyes, what can be said of them? Some are doubtless like cats', or boiled gooseberries, and yet the majority are very handsome. For myself I have a great predilection for green eyes; they are "the eyes of all eyes which my heart loves the best"—those wells of love and sincerity "where light is ever playing, where love in depth of shadow holds his throne." Therefore I dare not give my unbiased opinion on these eyes, the pictures of the soul, but will merely quote the opinions of others. Dante speaks of Beatrice's eyes as emeralds, in his "Purgatorio," and Longfellow, in his "Spanish Student," writes:

"And in her tender eyes
Just that soft shade of green we sometimes see
In evening skies."

Our author says: "Green eyes look as if floating in lambent light—large, dreamy, pensive, and yet really green." Zuluka's eyes ought to have been green—"Oh! that eye was in itself a soul?" They are not bewildering like the blue, nor dangerous like the black, neither affectionate as the brown, nor passionate as the gray, but they are the eyes of a visionary poet, whose soul has little to do with earth, and who loves better the land of memory and imagination. Psyche must have had green eyes.

Many eyes are beautiful from expression alone. Whatever of goodness there is in the heart, its soft halo appears in the eyes; and if the heart be selfish, hard and bad, the eye will tell its evil tales.

Eyes speak all languages, they wait for no introduction, ask no leave of age, of rank; they respect neither poverty nor riches, neither learning nor power, nor virtue, nor sex, but through and through you in a moment.

The eyes of men converse as much as their tongues, with the advantages that the eye needs no dictionary, but is understood all the world over—when the eyes say one thing, and the tongue another, a practical observer relies on the language of the first. Vain and forgotten are all the fine offers and offices of hospitality if there be no holiday in the eye. How many furtive indications are avowed by the eye, though dissembled by the lips.

THE MANAGING WIFE.

Ezra Newton had just finished looking over his yearly accounts. "Well," asked his wife, looking up, "how do you come out?"

"I find," said her husband, "that my expenses during the past year have been thirty-seven cents over a thousand dollars."

"And your income has been a thousand dollars?"

"Yes, I managed pretty well, didn't I?"

"Do you think it managing well to exceed your income?" said the wife.

"What's thirty-seven cents?" asked Mr. Newton, lightly.

"Not much, to be sure, but still something. It seems to me we ought to have saved, instead of falling behind."

"But how can we save on this salary, Elizabeth? We haven't lived extravagantly. Still it seems to have taken it all."

"Perhaps there is something in which we might retrench. Suppose you mention some of your items."

"The most important are house rent, one hundred and fifty dollars, and articles of food, five hundred dollars."

"Just half."

"Yes, and you'll admit that we can't retrench there, Elizabeth. I like to live well. I had enough of poor board before I was married. No, I mean to live as well as I can."

"Still we ought to have saved up something against a rainy day, Ezra."

"That would be something like carrying an umbrella when the sun shines."

"Still it is well to have an umbrella in the house."

"I can't contradict your logic, Elizabeth, but I am afraid we shan't be able to save any thing this year. When I get my salary raised, it will be time enough to think of that."

"Let me make a proposition to you," said Mrs. Newton. "You say one-half of your income has been expended on articles of food. Are you willing to allow me that sum for that purpose?"

"You guarantee to pay all bills out of it?"

"Yes."

"Then I will shift the responsibility upon you with pleasure. But I can tell you beforehand you won't be able to save much out of it."

"Perhaps not. At any rate I will engage not to exceed it."

"That's well. I shouldn't relish having any additional bills to pay. As I am paid every month, I will at each payment hand you half the money."

The different characters of husband and wife may be judged from the conversation which has been recorded. Mr. Newton had but little prudence or foresight. He lived chiefly for the present, and seemed to fancy that whatever contingencies might arise in the future, he would somehow be provided for. Now trust in Providence is a proper feeling, but there is a good deal of truth in the old adage that God will help those who will help themselves.

Mrs. Newton on the contrary, had been brought up in a family which was compelled to be economical, and although she was not disposed to deny herself comforts, yet she felt that it was desirable to procure them at a fair price.

The time that this conversation took place was at the commencement of the second year of their married life.

The first step that Mrs. Newton took, on accepting the charge of the household expenses, was to institute the practice o' paying cash for all articles that came under her apartment. She accordingly called on the butcher and inquired:

"How often have you been in the habit of presenting your bills, Mr. Williams?"

"Once in six months," was the reply.

"And I suppose you have sometimes bad bills?"

"Yes, one-third of my profits on an average, are swept off by them."

"And you could afford, I suppose, to sell somewhat cheaper for ready money?"

"Yes, and I would be glad if all my customers would give me a chance to do so."

"I will set them an example then," said Mrs. Newton. "Hereafter whatever articles shall be purchased of you will be paid for on the spot, and we shall expect you to sell as reasonable as you can."

This arrangement was also made with the others, who, it is scarcely needful to say, were very glad to enter into the arrangement. Ready money is the great support of the trade, and a cash customer is worth two who purchase on credit.

Fortunately Mrs. Newton had a small supply of money of her own, which lasted till the first monthly installment for her husband became due. Thus she was enabled to carry out her cash system from the beginning.

Another plan which occurred to her as likely to save expense, was to purchase articles in larger quantities. She had soon saved enough from the money allowed her to do this. For example, instead of buying sugar a few pounds at a time, she purchased a barrel, and thus saved a cent or more on the pound. This, perhaps, amounted to but a trifle in the course of a year, but the same system carried out in regard to other articles yielded a result which was by no means a trifle.

There were other ways in which a careful housekeeper is able to limit expense which Mrs. Newton did not overlook. With an object in view she was always on the lookout to prevent waste, and get the full value of whatever was expended.

The result was beyond her anticipation.

At the close of the year, on examination her bank book—for she had regularly deposited whatever money she had not occasion to use in one of these institutions—she found that she had one hundred and fifty dollars besides reimbursing herself for the money the first month, and having enough to last another.

"Well, Elizabeth, have you kept within your allowance?" asked her husband at this time. "I guess you have not found it so easy to save as you thought for."

"I have saved something, however," said his wife. "But how is it with you?"

"That's more than I can say. However I have not exceeded my income, that's one good thing. We have lived full as well, and I don't know but better than last year, when we spent five hundred."

"It's knack, Ezra," said his wife, smiling.

She was not inclined to mention how much she had saved. She wanted some time or other to surprise him with it when it would be of some service.

"She may possibly have saved up twenty-five dollars," thought Mr. Newton, "or some such trifle," and so dismissed the matter from his mind.

At the end of the second year, Mrs. Newton's savings, including the interest, amounted to three hundred and fifty dollars, and she began to feel quite rich.

Her husband did not think to inquire how she had succeeded, supposing, as before, that it could be but a very small sum.

However he had a piece of good had been raised from a thousand to twelve hundred dollars.

He added: "As I have allowed you one-half my income for household expenses, it is no more than fair I should do so now. That will give you a better chance to save something than before. Indeed, I don't know how you succeeded in saving thus far."

As before, Mrs. Newton merely said that she had saved something, without specifying the amount.

Her allowance was increased to six hundred dollars, but her expenses were not proportionately increased at all; so that her savings for the third year swelled to the aggregate sum in the savings bank to six hundred dollars.

Mr. Newton, on the contrary, in spite of his increased salary, was no better off at the end of the third year than before. His expenses had increased by a hundred dollars, though he would have found it difficult to tell in what way his comfort or happiness had been increased thereby.

In spite of his carelessness in regard to his own affairs, Mr. Newton was an excellent man in regard to his business, and his services were valuable to his employers. They accordingly increased his wages, from time to time, till it reached sixteen hundred dollars. He had steadily preserved the custom of assigning one half to his wife for the same purpose as heretofore, and this had become such a habit that he never thought to inquire whether she found it necessary to employ the whole or not.

Thus ten years rolled away. During all this time Mr. Newton lived in the same hired house for which he had paid an annual rent of one hundred and fifty dollars. Latterly, however, he had become dissatisfied with it. It had passed into the hands of a new landlord, who was not disposed to keep it in the repair which he considered desirable.

About this time a block of excellent houses were erected by a capitalist, who designed to sell them or let them as he might have an opportunity. They were more modern and much better arranged than the one in which Mr. Newton now lived, and he felt a strong desire to move in one of them. He mentioned it to his wife one morning.

"What is the rent, Ezra?" inquired she.

"Two hundred and twenty-five dollars for the corner house; two hundred for either of the others."

"The corner one would be preferable, on account of the side windows."

"Yes, and they have a large yard besides. I think we must hire one of them. I guess I'll engage one today; you know our year is out next week."

"Please wait, Ezra, till to-morrow before engaging one."

"For what reason?"

"I should like to examine the house."

Soon after breakfast Mrs. Newton called on 'Squire Bent, the owner of the new block, and intimated her desire to be shown the corner house. The request he readily complied with. Mrs. Newton was quite delighted with the arrangements, and expressed her satisfaction.

"Are these houses for sale or to let?" inquired she.

"Either," said the owner.

"The rent is, I understand, two hundred and twenty-five dollars."

"Yes; I consider the corner house worth at least twenty-five dollars more than the rest."

"And what do you charge for the house to a cash purchaser?" asked Mrs. Newton, with subdued eagerness.

"Four thousand dollars cash," was the reply, and that is but a small advance on the cost."

"Very well, I will buy it of you," added Mrs. Newton quietly.

"What did I understand you to say?" asked the 'Squire, scarcely believing his ears.

"I repeat that I will buy this house at your price, and pay the money within a week."

"Then the house is yours. But your husband said nothing of his intention, and in fact I did not know—"

"That he had money to invest, I suppose you would say. Neither does he know it, and I must ask you not to tell him for the present."

The next morning Mrs. Newton invited her husband to take a walk, but without specifying the direction.

They soon stood in front of the house in which he desired to live.

"Wouldn't you like to go in?" she asked.

"Yes. It's a pity we haven't got the key," with which she walked up the steps and proceeded to open the door.

"When did you get the key of 'Squire Bent?" asked the husband.

"Yesterday, when I bought the house," said his wife quietly.

"What on earth do you mean, Elizabeth?" he inquired.

"Just what I say. The house is mine, and what is mine is thine. So the house is yours, Ezra."

"Where in the name of goodness did you raise the money?" asked her husband, his amazement still as great as ever.

"I haven't been a managing wife for ten years for nothing," said Mrs. Newton, smiling.

With some difficulty Mrs. Newton persuaded her husband that the price of the house was really the result of her savings. He felt, when he surveyed the commodious arrangements of the new house, that he had reason to be grateful for the prudence of his managing wife.

THE NEW TESTAMENT MAN.

BY MRS. MARY M. MARTIN.

[From the New York Observer.]

Taking it for granted that "The husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the Church," let us hear what is written in continuation:

"Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the Church, and gave Himself for it."

It would seem rather strange that a man, in his near relation to his wife, should need a positive command to love her! And, as if it were necessary to follow up the thought, they are enjoined "To love them as their own bodies. For no man ever yet hated his own flesh, but nourisheth and cherisheth it."

The man of the New Testament is, therefore, bound by the law of the Gospel to cherish his wife in sickness and in health, and in joy or sorrow to make her comfort his first care, as if it were his own. And, as if all this were not sufficiently definite, or too general in its meaning, the New Testament says: "Let every one of you in particular so love his wife, even as himself." So there can be no doubt that every individual husband is commanded to do this thing.

To this another command is added: "Likewise ye husband dwell with them according to knowledge, giving honor unto the weaker vessel, and as being heirs together of the grace of life, that your prayers be not hindered."

The New Testament man who gives honor to his wife, seeks no enjoyment in which she does not share; he consults her tasts and preferences in all things; sympathizes with her in all her weaknesses, whether physical or mental; and in everything so conducts himself towards her that he can "With boldness approach the throne of grace," with the consciousness that his "prayers will not be hindered."

But, lest there should be some misunderstanding, the New Testament man is still further enjoined: "Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter against them."

What a singular command! Bitter against them! The woman who, in the fullest confidence, has given "her all of earth, perchance of heaven," into this husband's hands; who, in her weakness, is so dependent upon him, who makes his comfort her greatest care; who regards his lightest wish her law, his smile her joy, his frown her woe—HE bitter against her! O, what visions of sorrow must have passed through the mind of the apostle, as he penned these words! How grieved his pure heart—how ashamed to own there was need of such a command!

The New Testament man, if a bishop or an elder, must be the husband of but one wife. Methinks he could not live in Utah, or even in a country whose laws uphold and sanction its practices, without lifting up his voice against such iniquity.

In addition to all these commands, is yet another: "And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged."

What! a father provoking his children to anger instead of to love and good works! A child in the house of his father discouraged! He who gave him life without his consent or choice, bone of his bone and flesh of his flesh, so far forget his dear relations to him as to discourage him, in the bloom of his youth, when hope is the brightest, and life is all before him in its rosy hues! No wonder the New Testament man is warned against this great sin: he will not commit it; he will be a kind and loving father to his children, encouraging them in every good and noble thought and action, and so treating them that they will give their love and confidence, and be far less likely to be led astray into the paths of sin.

The New Testament man "will provide for his own," and "specially for those of his own house." He will labor for them, in his calling, cheerfully supplying their necessities, and even the luxuries of life, if it is within his means.

In obeying these commands, he will do more to put an end to the crying sin of divorce than all the enactments of the Several States of the Union; and he will hear less of woman's rights and woman suffrage, and all the ills they seek to remedy.

Let the New Testiment man come forth in his strength, and conquer by love and good works.

The Pictorial Family Bible contains a storehouse of information that can only reach the mind through the eye. Its Illustrations carry one back to the most important era of the world, and are of themselves a comprehensive review of the scriptures, representing the most interesting views, Characters, Symbols, Historical Events, Landscape Scenes, Antiquities, Costumes, Beasts, Birds, Insects, Plants, Minerals, Coins, Medals, Inscriptions and Incidents referred to throughout the Sacred Text. They attract the eye, correct erroneous impressions, awaken new thoughts, and furnish clearer views of Divine Truth. As a help to Parents, Ministers and Sabbath-School Teachers in fulfilling the duties of their separate and high vocations—and to all others to whom immortal souls are intrusted—this splendid Pictorial Volume cannot be overestimated. It is the Edition

Most Suitable for the Family,
Most Valuable for the Student,
Most Instructive for the Teacher,
Most Appropriate for the Child,
Most Useful for the Minister,
Most Interesting for the Farmer,
Most Elegant for the Parlor,
Most Profitable for the Study.

The Pictorial Family Bible, in addition to the features already alluded to, contains the Apocrypha, Concordance Psalms in Metre, a Summary of the Sacred Truths as taught in the Inspired Book, together with numerous and comprehensive Tables and other historical and explanatory Matter, embodying the labors of many of the most eminent Biblical Scholars. It is printed on the finest calandared paper, from clear and open type, in one large and handsome quarto volume, and is bound in the most durable and attractive manner, while the prices are sufficiently low to place it within everybody's reach.

Experienced Agents are wanted throughout the country for its sale, with whom liberal arrangements will be made. An opportunity of equal promise is rarely or never presented. Its sale will not be limited to any period, but will continue for a lifetime, constantly increasing with the growth and intelligence of the country. It is therefore desirable that those who engage with us, shall do so with a view to making the business a permanent one.

Ministers, Teachers, Students, Farmers, Young Men and Women,—those who would meet with the most profitable of all employments—are invited to correspond with us with a view to an agency. Not a few such are averaging from $5000 to $1000 annual profit in its sale. There is a great want for the book and a rich field offered, while it will elevate the spiritual condition by constant contact with and conversations upon its beautiful and eternal truths.

Agents on the Instalment Plan will be furnished the work in fine bindings. This plan is quite popular and profitable in cities and large towns. We have an edition of the book, superbly bound, with massive paneled sides, which has everywhere been received with marked favor. Subscriptions for the Pictorial Bible, in this style and in this way, can be obtained to an almost an unlimited extent, as there is no outlay of money that the Bible reader can make, which will yield him so rich a return.

We are also the publishers of Potter's Standard Editions of Family, Pulpit, Pocket and and Photographic Bibles and Testaments—nearly 300 different styles—so well known everywhere for their accuracy of text, beauty of finish and durability of binding. Always ask for POTTER'S STANDARD EDITIONS, and get the best. Catalogues containing styles and prices furnished on application.

For Circulars containing a full description of The Pictorial Family Bible, with sample sheet, and terms to Agents, address "POTTER'S STANDARD BIBLE AND TESTAMENT HOUSE."

WARNER'S
PILE REMEDY.

Warner's Pile Remedy has never failed (not even in one case) to cure the very worst cases of Blind, Itching or Bleeding Piles. Those who are afflicted should immediately call on their druggist and get it for it will, with the first application, instantly afford complete relief, and the few following applications are only required to effect a permanent cure without any trouble or inconvenience in its use.

WARNER'S PILE REMEDY is expressly for the Piles, and is not recommended to cure any other disease. It has cured many cases of over thirty years' standing. Price One Dollar. For sale by druggists everywhere.

No More
WEAK NERVES.

Warner's Dyspepsia Tonic is prepared expressly for Dyspeptics and those suffering with habitual Costiveness. There are very few who have not employed physicians for years to remedy what this preparation will do in a few weeks, by strengthening the nerves, increasing the circulation, restoring digestion, giving strength mentally and physically, enabling those who may have been confined for years to their rooms as invalids to again resume their occupations and all the duties of Life. One trial is all we ask to enable this remedy to recommend itself to the most skeptical. It is a slightly stimulating tonic and a splendid appetizer; it strengthens the stomach and restores the digestive organs to their healthy state. Weak, nervous and dyspeptic persons should use Warner's Dyspepsia Tonic. For sale by druggists.—Price One Dollar.

COUGH no MORE

Warner's Cough Balsam is healing, softening and expectorating. The extraordinary power it possesses in immediately relieving and eventually curing, the most obstinate cases of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Catarrh, Hoarseness, Asthma and Consumption is almost incredible. So prompt is the relief and certain its effects in all the above cases, or any affection of the throat and lungs, that thousands of physicians are daily prescribing it, and one and all say that it is the most healing and expectorating medicine ever known. One dose always affords relief, and in most cases one bottle effects a cure. Sold by druggists, in large bottles. Price One Dollar. It is your own fault if you still cough and suffer. The Balsam will cure.

WINE OF LIFE.

The Great Blood Purifier and Delicious Drink, Warner's Vinum Vitæ, or Wine of Life, is free from any poisonous drugs or impurities, being prepared for those who require a stimulant.—It is a splendid appetizer and tonic, and the finest thing in the world for purifying the blood. It is the most pleasant and delicious article ever offered to the public; far superior to brandy, whisky, wine, bitters, or any other article. It is more healthy, and cheaper. Both male and female, young or old, can take the Wine of Life. It is, in fact, a life preserver. Those who wish to enjoy good health and a free flow of lively spirits, will do well to take the Wine of Life. It is different from anything ever before in use. It is sold by druggists. Price One Dollar, in quart bottles.

EMMENAGOGUE.

Warner's Emmenagogue is the only article known to cure the Whites, (it will cure in every case.) Where is the family in which this important medicine is not wanted? Mothers, this is the greatest blessing ever offered you, and you should immediately procure it. It is also a cure for Female Irregularities, and may be depended upon in every case where the monthly flow has been obstructed through cold or disease. Sold by druggists. Price One Dollar.

☞ Sold by all Druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of One Dollar and a Quarter. Address—619 State street, Chicago.
